She whacked him

Girl clerk foils boy's holdup ruse

POMONA — A 15-year-old youth, whose robbery attempt fizzled when the girl victim found out he wasn't armed, was clubbed, chased and captured Wednesday night, police reported.

The 135-pound youth, apparently not seriously injured despite being whacked several times with a billy club, was booked on suspicion of robbery.

The incident occurred at the 7-11 Market, 1001 E. Grand Ave. The clerk, Bridget M. Kittel, 17, said the youth entered at 9 p.m., walked to the counter and told her it was a robbery. He had a white T-shirt wrapped around his right hand and gestured with it as if the shirt contained a pistol.

After getting currency from the register, the youth climbed onto the counter on his knees and demanded that Miss Kittel also give him the coins. At that point she noticed his index finger sticking out of the wrappings and realized he didn't have a gun. She reached under the counter, got the billy club and knocked the youth off. Then she pursued him outside, felling him several times before he was seized by several men and held for police.

Major brush, structure blazes in four counties

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

Hot and dry Santa Ana winds, gusting up to 90 miles an hour in some areas, kept firemen throughout Southern California busy Wednesday fighting major brush and structure fires that caused havoc in four counties.

The Santa Ana condition will continue today with a high temperature in Pomona Valley of 96 degrees.

Los Angeles County firemen fought two major structure fires Wednesday night in La Puente and Brea. They believe both were started by arsonists. Fire destroyed the Doughboy Surplus Co., 1731 E. Valley Blvd., causing $350,000 damage. Another blaze in Brea caused $55,000 damage to a strucutre and equipment owned by the Shell Oil Co., at property at the end of Site Road.

The La Puente fire destroyed the structure and contents, which included sporting goods equipment and gun powder. Firemen said about 1,000 rounds of ammunition went off during the spectacular blaze, which drew large crowds who hampered the work of firemen.

The store, located in a shopping center, was closed at the time the fire was discovered by a nearby resident at 9 p.m. The fire was confined to the one building.

Both fires are under investigation by the arson detail of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

Gusty winds Wednesday fanned the grass and brush fires that erupted in all areas of the Southland. Four fires were reported in Ventura County, four in San Bernardino County, two in Los Angeles County and three in Riverside County.

The major Ventura blaze burned 5,000 acres and threatened expensive homes there. Smoke from the blaze billowed hundreds of feet into the air. Flames at night were visible from a distance of 30 miles. The fire forced the closure of seven miles of the Pacific Coast Highway from Point Mugu to Decker Canyon throughout the night.

The California Highway Patrol said the closed area might be extended today to Malibu Canyon.

The route of the blaze extended southward toward the coast from the Camarillo State Hospital. For a time the Broome Ranch was threatened. The fire did overtake a radar relay station operated by the Point Mugu Naval Air Station at Laguna Peak.

Another blaze charred several hundred citrus trees and 1,000 acres of brush on the Sence Ranch between Moorpark and Somis in Ventura County before it was brought under control Wednesday.

Children playing with matches were blamed for starting a fire that burned 80 acres on a ridge between Santa Rosa Valley and Moorpark.

In Riverside County, a brush fire Wednesday burned 1,250 acres of brush in an area 10 miles west of Beaumont. A house trailer and three small buildings were destroyed in the fire.

Because of the fire U.S. Highway 60 from Beaumont to Sunnymead east of Riverside was closed for three hours.

More than 200 firemen fought a blaze that burned 200 acres near the Prado Dam in the Norco area of Riverside. Police investigated a report that the blaze was started by a glider plane that crashed, but found no sign of the plane.

Firemen also fought more than a dozen minor brush fires in San Bernardino County. The largest was a three-acre burn in the Rialto Bench area.

Locally, the Pomona Fire Department put out several small grass fires Wednesday and were kept busy at the Los Angeles County fair, where an arsonist set a series of four trash fires within an hour.

Fire officials again today warned residents of the extreme fire hazard during the dry Santa Ana condition.

Forecaster Jim Christopherson of the National Weather Service Office in Riverside said the weather would be hot again today with a high of 96 degrees. The high Wednesday in Pomona was 95 degrees. The Santa Ana condition which is bringing gusty winds to some areas should decrease by Friday. Temperatures should drop to 90 by Friday and to the mid-80s by the weekend.

High winds closed the Cajon Pass north to San Bernardino to travel by campers and trailers early today. The CHP issued wind warnings to other canyon areas today, but they remained open to traffic.

'I'll never forget him'

Victim identifies 2 home-invasion suspects

By JACK BURSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Mrs. June W. Ryan Wednesday identified two Riverside men as the ones who invaded her home here March 23, tied her and her husband and their son and daughter and then ransacked the house.

During the invasion of the Ryan home, the throats of the younger Ryans were slashed, but they survived.

The defendants on trial in Pomona Superior Court are Arnold Keith Spears, 22, and James Franklin Hooker, 21. They are charged with attempted murder, robbery and burglary and are being tried before a jury and Judge August J. Goebel.

Mrs. Ryan's identification of Spears and Hooker followed by one day her husband's identification of them. Her identification of Hooker was vehement.

"I'll never forget him," she said, looking at Hooker sitting with his attorney at a table. Later during her testimony Mrs. Ryan refused to handle a jacket Deputy District Attorney Joel Hoffman entered into evidence as belonging to Hooker.

"Do I have to touch it?" she asked, recoiling. Hoffman said she did not. He removed it from a plastic container and held it for her examination.

Mrs. Ryan, 51, testified that she, her husband George, 52, and their son Mark, 24, were chatting and watching television that evening when she heard the screendoor open and saw the door knob turn at the entrance to their home. Ryan went to the door, thinking it was their daughter, Gale, 21. Instead he found a young woman, claiming to be conducting a survey, she said.

Then, Mrs. Ryan said, she saw her husband being backed into the house by Spears holding a pistol to his stomach. Behind him was Hooker, armed with a rifle or shotgun, and the young woman, she testified.

The men forced everyone to the floor, and bound and gagged them with rags belonging to the Ryans. Then began the ransacking of the house. Mrs. Ryan said her wedding and engagement rings and her wrist watch were pulled from her as she lay bound face-down on the floor.

The trial continued today with Mark Ryan testifying. He was expected to be followed by his sister.

Both Spears and Hooker are being held in lieu of bail.

Coffee found to have calming effect on restless children

CHICAGO (UPI) —Coffee may be better, and a lot less expensive, than drugs in calming restless hyperkinetic children, the American Medical Association reports.

Hyperkinetic children are constantly moving aimlessly about, unable to sit still in class or concentrate on school work. The AMA estimates four out of every 100 school children are so affected.

Most are treated with methylphenidate or amphetamine, drugs which are stimulants for adults but for unknown reasons have a calming effect on hyperkinetic children. Drug side effects can include insomnia, loss of appetite and abdominal pain.

Dr. Robert C. Schnackenberg, chief of the Child and Adolescent service at William S. Hall Psychiatric Institute, Columbia, S.C., said he studied the use of coffee instead of drugs for six months and concluded children were slightly more calm with coffee and had no traceable side effects.

Writing in the American Journal of Psychiatry, Schnackenberg said he conducted pilot tests on 11 children and asked their teachers to rate them in hyperkinetic behavior on a scientific scale.

At first the children were given no drugs, then they were placed on methylphenidate and finally on two cups of coffee, one at breakfast and one at lunch daily.

"While the youngsters were off drugs their behavior rating scores, as expected, were in the hyperkinetic range," Schnackenberg reported. "But they dropped to normal while the children were on drugs and on coffee; in fact, the coffee score was slightly better.

"The annoying side effects disappeared and no side effects appeared that could be traced to coffee."

Schnackenberg said the coffee treatment costs only $10 a year compared to about $100 for the drugs.

100 flee downtown Riverside hotel fire

RIVERSIDE (UPI) —About 100 persons were evacuated from the Riverside Hotel early today when a fire of undetermined origin swept through the old four-story structure leaving it in rubble.

One fireman was taken to the hospital with minor injuries sustained while fighting the blaze, which was reported at 2:13 a.m.

Fourteen fire units —about 50 men —battled the flames in the city's downtown section and though the hotel was described as "a total loss," the flames were prevented from spreading to neighboring structures.

The cause of the blaze was under investigation. There was no estimate of damage.

Boyle conscious, remains critical

WASHINGTON (UPI) —W. A. "Tony" Boyle, former head of the United Mine Workers Union, regained consciousness today but was reported still in critical condition after an apparent suicide attempt.

A spokesman at George Washington University Hospital said Boyle, who had been unconscious since taking an overdose of barbiturates Monday night, was now awake.

"He is still listed in critical condition," the spokesman added.

Boyle's doctors reported he developed a rapid heart action Wednesday night but said the condition was being controlled by medication.

Senate OKs go-ahead on new missile sub

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate voted today in favor of proceeding promptly with work on the new Trident missile submarine.

By a 49-47 vote, the Senate rejected a move to delay the project by two years until about 1980. Trident supporters won their fight with arguments centering on Soviet missile progress.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., was principal sponsor of the proposal to delay the Trident by deleting $885 million from a $1.5 billion administration request for the submarine this fiscal year, which began July 1.

Mall to be open for car traffic?

POMONA — The Mall Commission recommended to the City Council today that the Mall be opened to vehicular traffic on a trial basis through the Christmas shopping season.

There was a stipulation in the recommendation that the Mall be opened to auto traffic only if the problems of traffic control and pedestrian safety can be solved.

The commission recommended also that after the trial period the program be evaluated for permanency.

The request for vehicular traffic on the Mall was directed to the City Council from the Central Business District. The council referred the matter to the Mall Commission.

Case against Agnew goes to grand jury

BALTIMORE (UPI) —Evidence involving allegations of bribery, extortion and conspiracy against Spiro T. Agnew was presented to a federal grand jury today despite the vice president's contention that he is immune from indictment.

Extremely tight security was imposed at the federal courthouse for the 22-member panel's secret deliberations. A large group of reporters was barred by a small army of U. S. marshals from getting near any areas used by jurors or witnesses.

The vice president sat in on the first hour of a meeting President Nixon held at the White House this morning with Cabinet members and Republican congressional leaders.

Agnew was described by supporters and aides as confident of vindication and expressing public determination to remain in office while resignation rumors continued to circulate.

The federal prosecutors proceeded with the Agnew presentation with the approval of Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, who assumed the responsibility for deciding how far the Agnew investigation could go as part of a wide ranging inquiry into political corruption in Maryland.

Agnew sought unsuccessfully to get Congress to take over the prime investigatory role, arguing that he could not be indicted in the courts without first being impeached. Speaker Carl Albert rejected Agnew's request Wednesday, some 18 hours after it was made.

The vice president's lawyers have said they will challenge the grand jury's deliberations, but they made no move to do so before George Beall, U. S. attorney for Maryland and in charge of the overall corruption inquiry, went before the grand jury this morning.

One of Agnew's chief lawyers, Judah Best, said it probably would be at least Monday before the challenge is filed. Best said he was in "no hurry" to file the suit, saying the timing was not particularly relevant.

For almost 10 months, the grand jury has been investigating charges that Maryland public officials engaged in a variety of misdeeds, including accepting kickbacks from architectural and engineering contractors doing business with the state.

It was reported that Agnew's name unexpectedly cropped up early this year during investigations covering the period when he was top executive officer of Baltimore County and later Maryland governor.

Beall formally notified Agnew early last month that he was under investigation for allegations of extortion, bribery, tax fraud and conspiracy.

Agnew promptly labeled the charges against him as "damned lies."

Some former associates and friends of Agnew have been cited in news leaks as sources of some of the charges.

The chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Baltimore, Edward S. Northrop, banned publication of names of members of the grand jury. Marshals closed off the entire fifth floor of the federal building where the panel meets.

Other uniformed guards, equipped with walkie-talkies, also blocked reporters from garage areas usually used as an entrance to the building by witnesses summoned before the grand jury.

Despite the tight security, members of the jury could be seen arriving half an hour before the 10 a.m. EDT start of the deliberations.

The presentation against Agnew is expected to last several days. Beall and his assistants were said to be anxious to get it completed as quickly as possible. The grand jury has been meeting in the past only about once a week. Beall was expected to schedule almost daily sessions to try to wind up the Agnew presentation in a week or so.

Beef prices drop in area markets

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A drop in wholesale beef prices is being reflected in Southern California markets and will continue to do so, supermarket executives said Wednesday.

Safeway reported "substantial reductions" in prices of beef, pork, poultry and lamb at its 240 stores in Southern California.

Beef prices have dropped 10 cents a pound in the past two weeks.

Ken Olsen, senior vice president at Von's, said "The market is down and we're going down with it.

"There is a plentiful supply of cattle. I anticipate we're only seeing the beginning. I think there will be more softening of prices, perhaps through Thanksgiving or early December," he said.

Buchanan testimony

It was 'shrewd strategy,' not illegal tactics

By ED DOOLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House speech writer Patrick J. Buchanan says Republicans relied on shrewd political strategy, not illegal tactics, to undercut the Democratic opposition and win President Nixon's re-election.

Buchanan denied personal wrongdoing in the 1972 campaign, but called the Watergate break-in a "grievous error" and a crime for which he said the Republican party was not to blame.

In sometimes impassioned testimony Wednesday, Buchanan defended a series of memos he wrote in 1971 proposing an attack on then Democratic frontrunner Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday.

The memos began in March, 1971, when Muskie was the frontrunner, and continued through the selection of McGovern in August, 1972.

Muskie, Buchanan wrote could have united the Democratic party, "and that is bad news for us."

"There is fertile ground here," Buchanan said in a memo to Nixon. "Muskie is short tempered, he regularly rebuffs reporters who ask hostile questions."

A month later he reported that Sen. Hubert Humphrey was enjoying a "resurrection," but added that Humphrey's "deficiencies," including the fact he was "an old face, a loser" seemed "to make him a thoroughly acceptable candidate from our point of view."

"We should keep the heat on Big Ed," (Muskie) Buchanan wrote.

In June, he reported to Nixon that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., was "running actively."

The strategy, he said "is to keep Kennedy out on the far left of his party—to prevent major inroads into the center."

In July the Democratic race was unclear to Buchanan, and he proposed that all the contenders "should be hit now and hard."

By October, Buchanan was advocating the encouragement of George Wallace in Democratic primaries as "excellent vehicle for surfacing and hardening the divisions within the Democratic party."

When McGovern finally became the frontrunner, Buchanan wrote "We must do as little as possible, at this time to impede McGovern's rise."

"We have plenty of time to attack labels later and the same labels which will defeat McGovern for the presidency could prevent him from getting the nomination."

All Italy mourns death of actress Anna Magnani

ROME (UPI) —Italians sat before television sets in homes and bars across the country Wednesday night to pay a last farewell to Anna Magnani, the tempestuous actress who won an Oscar in 1956 for "The Rose Tattoo."

The 65-year-old actress, who believed the secret to happiness was to "be beautiful, to live violently," died of cancer in a Rome clinic hours before her last television film went on the air.

Doctors said she had been unconscious for nine hours before dying.

Italians who heard the news clustered around television sets during the evening to watch her a final time. The president of Italy sent a message of sympathy and the mayor of Rome paid a deathbed call.

Death came at 6:24 p.m., less than three hours before the screening of the television film "1870" in which she played a patriot's girlfriend before papal Rome fell to Italian troops.

The actress' son, Luca, 31, and director Roberto Rossellini —two of the persons closest to her in life—were by her side when she died of cancer of the pancreas.

Luca, her only child from a long broken marriage to director Goffredo Alessandrini, was stricken with polio as a child in what friends called the tragedy of her life. She spent years helping rehabilitate him.

Rossellini directed her in "Open City," the 1946 film about wartime Rome that started Italian neo-realism and brought her to fame. He also had a stormy love affair with her before leaving in 1949 for Ingrid Bergman.

Friends said the actress would be buried Friday in the Rossellini family vault at Rome's Verano cemetery.

ANNA MAGNANI

In Hollywood, George Cukor, who directed her in "Wild is the Wind," said, "She was an extraordinary actress who was able to give the illusion of beauty although she was not beautiful.

Hal Wallis, producer of "Rose Tattoo," called her "a marvelously lusty woman who was loyal to her friends and one of the best actresses of them all."

Italian President Giovanni Leone said her countrymen loved her both as an actress and "a most tender mother, who until her death faced a great misfortune in her family with tenacity and courage."

Dayan warning: preparing for imminent attack

By United Press International

Only hours after Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan accused Syria of building a massive war arsenal on its frontier with Israel, a Beirut magazine said today Syria is on alert and preparing for an imminent Israeli attack.

The magazine As Sayyad made the remark in an introduction to an interview its correspondent conducted in Damascus with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam.

"Damascus is on alert now," the correspondent said. "It is preparing to confront an expected Israeli attack. Enemy forces are mobilized in the occupied territory and advancing toward the cease-fire lines, particularly in the area facing Horan, according to information in the Syrian capital."

The military command in Tel Aviv refused comment on the report.

Dayan claimed Wednesday night that across the Syrian border, there are "hundreds of tanks and hundreds of artillery barrels in operative range as well as an antiaircraft missile layout approaching in density that of the Egyptians along the Suez Canal."

On a visit to the occupied Golan Heights, Dayan urged residents to bolster their defenses against any possible attack from Syria. Israel fought its most recent land battle with the Syrians seven months ago.

The London Times said U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has proposed a Middle East plan calling for an Israeli troop withdrawal from parts of the Golan Heights seized from Syria during the 1967 Mideast war.

The Times said Kissinger's proposal also called for a partial Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal.

COURT IN SESSION

Michael Lee Fowler, 26, is escorted across bridge over the Ohio River to testify in murder trial. Testimony was taken on the state line to prevent Fowler's arrest in Ohio.

Holding court in middle of bridge is 'borderline' case

CINCINNATI (UPI) —With cars rumbling past and the court reporter precariously perched on his briefcase taking down every word, officials held court on the Ohio-Kentucky borderline on the Suspension Bridge.

The unusual scene evolved from two problems:

Attorneys wanted Michael Lee Fowler, in jail in Covington, Ky., to testify in the murder trial of Gary A. Keys, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

But Fowler, held on fraud charges, refused to cross the Ohio River to testify because he is wanted on three bad check charges in Ohio. And Keys, who cannot leave Ohio because of the murder charge, refused to waive his right to be present when a witness testifies.

Thus, the courtroom on the side of the bridge, overlooking the Ohio River.

Fowler and Keys were brought to the bridge and stood just a few feet apart—Fowler on the edge of the Kentucky side and Keys on the Ohio side.

Attorneys questioned and crossexamined Fowler in the presence of Hamilton County Court Judge William S. Mathews, who had approved the unorthodox setting.

Jurors, who were not on hand during the testimony, will be given the transcript of Fowler's statements.

Concorde establishes record in Washington-Paris flight

PARIS (UPI) — The Franco-British Concorde jetliner in a preview of things to come in supersonic air travel set a record for a commercial airliner Wednesday, covering the 3,390 miles from Washington to Paris in 3 hours and 33 minutes.

Returning from its maiden trip to the United States, the needle-nosed plane left Washington's Dulles International Airport at 7:45 a.m. EDT and touched down at Paris Orly Airport at 11:18 a.m. EDT (4:18 p.m. Paris time).

The 1,400 m.p.h. delta-wing transport carried 32 passengers in a trial flight over the North Atlantic route, where it is scheduled to begin service between London-Paris and New York.

The record for a North Atlantic flight is held by a military aircraft: 3 hours, 11 minutes from New York to Paris set by a U.S. Air Force B58 May 26, 1961.

On a flight so smooth it didn't cause a ripple in the passengers' martinis, the Concorde flew at twice the speed of sound for two hours and 16 minutes over the normal jet air routes at a maximum altitude of 58,000 feet.

The precedent-setting flight carried one hitch-hiker—a spider was found on the cockpit instrument panel.

Among the passengers were Sir Geoffrey Knight, vice-chairman of the British Aircraft Corp., and Henri Ziegler, head of the French Aerospatiale company, co-builders of the plane.

"We have shown the Concorde is an airline airplane," Knight said afterwards.

"This trip marks a turning point in the history of supersonic flight and in the history of Concorde," said Ziegler. "It will put an end to talk about Concorde's viability."

Banned from supersonic flight over the United States, the 126-passenger plane broke through the sound barrier, 750 m.p.h., off the coast of Massachusetts 27 minutes after take-off from Washington.

Twenty-five minutes later, the plane reached Mach 2: 1,400 m.p.h.

As a stewardess in a Christian Dior uniform served croissants, the passengers lounged two abreast in deep leather seats. There was no inflight movie. The speed left just enough time for a meal service. Midway through the meal, the Concorde was halfway to Paris.

Women seek to enter academies

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal court here has been asked to open the doors of the Navy and Air Force academies to make way for midshipwomen and airwomen.

The Center for Women's Policy Studies filed a class action suit in U.S. District Court Wednesday challenging the requirement that applicants for the elite officer-training academies be men.

The suit was filed on behalf of Coralie S. Cross of Danville, Calif., who is seeking admission to the Naval Academy, and Jolene Ann Schwab of Fremont, Calif., who would like to become an Air Force officer.

Attorney Virginia Dondy said a suit would have been filed against the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., had the group been able to find a woman seeking entrance.

She claimed that the men-only policy denies women an equal chance to advance in the military.

The two womens' nominations to the academy are supported by California Democratic Reps. Jerome Waldie, Fortney Stark, Don Edwards and Leo Ryan, who were listed in the suit as coplaintiffs.

Upland police subdue suspect

UPLAND — Two Upland police officers investigating a report of a battery on a woman at 173 N. 13th Ave. Wednesday night said they were attacked by a man with a steak knife.

Officer Robert Smeaton, according to police reports, was slightly cut in the fracas with the suspect, identified as Kenneth C. Austin, 41, of the 13th Avenue address.

Austin was booked in the West End sheriff's jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer and resisting arrest.

Smeaton said that he and his partner, Steve Folk, went to the apartment about 11:25 p.m. on a report that a woman had been beaten. The officers were met by Austin and the woman. The woman told officers that Austin had not hurt her.

Officer Folk said he noticed that Austin, sitting on a sofa, had a steak knife in his rear pocket.

Smeaton said when they asked Austin for the knife he jumped up and began waving it around, poking it at the officers. Smeaton and Folk said they managed to get the knife away from the man after spraying him with chemical Mace.

Smeaton suffered several cuts on his left hand in the fracas. Smeaton was given emergency treatment for minor lacerations at San Antonio Community Hospital and later released.

Nixon $3 bill coffee mugs seized

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About 2,000 coffee mugs bearing a facsimile of a $3 bill with an uncomplimentary picture of President Nixon have been seized and destroyed by federal agents.

Horace Gibbs, agent in charge of the Secret Service in San Francisco, said Wednesday the mugs violated federal currency laws governing "similitude" —resembling in any way the paper money of the United States.

"Even one minute corner of the bill, if it's in similitude, is usually deemed a violation," Gibbs said. "And that's regardless of the material, whether it's paper, cloth, glass or anything.

"Even leaving the picture out would not change it."

U.S. Attorney James Browning said his office has declined to prosecute in the case. "This doesn't sound like the most serious violation I've ever heard of," he said.

The mugs, made in Japan, were seized from the Giftwares Division of General Housewares, Inc., of San Rafael, Calif., with headquarters in Hyannis, Mass. The firm's lawyer said no move would be made to fight the seizure "because there wasn't enough money involved."

"I personally don't think we violated any law," said Gordon Erickson, "but there are some things that economically you can't fight—like the government."

COFFEE BREAK ILLEGAL

It's illegal if you're using coffee mug shown above. About 2,000 such cups bearing facsimile of a $3 bill with an uncomplimentary picture of President Nixon have been seized by federal agents.

Nuns sentenced in shoplifting

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (UPI) —A case of shoplifting involving Elizabeth McAlister, wife of Father Phillip Berrigan, was "just one of those spur of the moment things I shouldn't have done but did," the nun said.

Mrs. Berrigan and Sister Judith Lafemina were arrested Aug. 27 for taking an electric drill, picture hangers and sandpaper from a local Sears Roebuck store. Wednesday, Judge George Taylor sentenced each woman to a 10-day suspended jail term and a fine of $100.

Both defendants were also placed on a year's probation.

Onassis, Jackie on ice draws Russ fire

MOSCOW (UPI) —Soviet scientist Vladimir A. Negovsky ridiculed an Italian magazine report that Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis want to have their bodies frozen after death for possible later revival, saying this showed that even in death, there is no equality in the capitalist society.

"The process of freezing and keeping frozen corpses costs much money. Only the very wealthy can afford it," Negovsky said.

"And for these riches they are trying to buy eternity. How human relations must be distorted in a society which in fact abandons the idea of equality even in the face of death," he said.

Climber, 61, to try peak in Yosemite

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) —Banker Stan Zundell, who has made a record eight amateur ascents of Switzerland's Matterhorn, turned 61 Wednesday, and said he will next climb the 3,000-foot granite "Lost Arrow Spire" in Yosemite National Park, Calif.

"In the five years I've been climbing, this is the big one for me. I'm even liable to run out of gas halfway up because at 61, I'm not so tough and strong.

"I don't plan to take out any extra life insurance. I simply don't plan to get myself killed on this climb," Zundell said.

$10 million suit filed by police

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — The Northport Police Benevolent Association filed a $10 million suit against disc jockey Donald Imus Wednesday, charging that the WNBC morning radio personality had libeled the village police.

The association quoted Imus as saying Aug. 28, "All of the Northport police officers are very heavy into drugs and taking money under the table."

The transcript indicated that Imus' remarks came in the aftermath of a rock concert which he and WABC-TV newscaster Geraldo Rivera had sponsored the previous night at Northport High School.

McCarthy may run again for House

ST. PAUL, Minn (UPI) — Former Congressman Eugene J. McCarthy wants to return to the U.S. House of Representatives to help reform it, but he stopped short of announcing his candidacy for Minnesota's 6th District Wednesday. He told the St. Paul Dispatch only that he was "seriously considering" making the race.

"I have long thought that the House had to be made into a somewhat more effective and committed political instrument, that something comparable to Britain's Parliament was needed," McCarthy, 55, who served 10 years in the House before being elected to the Senate, told the Disptach in a telephone interview from Washington.

Ruckelshouse in 4th job for Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —William D. Ruckelshaus began his fourth job in the Nixon administration Wednesday when he was sworn in as deputy attorney general, the No. 2 position at the Justice Department.

Ruckelshaus, 41, succeeds Joseph T. Sneed, who has been named to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson administered the oath of office to Ruckelshaus, who held his hand on a Bible held by his wife, Jill.

Suspect in rape case is arrested

POMONA — Police Wednesday night arrested a man here in connection with the rape of a young woman Tuesday morning.

The suspect, Thadeus Larue Johnson, 19, was booked on charges of rape, kidnaping, perversion and assault with a deadly weapon. He war arrested at 638 W. 4th St., the location of the incident.

The woman told police she was dragged into the apartment building while she was en route to the Los Angeles County Health Department office nearby. She said she was held prisoner in the apartment by a man with a .45-caliber pistol and during that time she was attacked.

A suspect escaped police later Tuesday in a foot chase at 7th Street and Garey Avenue during which he abandoned or dropped his loaded, .45-caliber pistol.

Man chases, nabs suspect who tried to run down him, family

MONTCLAIR — A 26-year-old Chino man arrested in Ontario Wednesday night is accused of trying to run down a Montclair man and his family with a car in a parking lot at 5334 Holt Blvd., police reported.

The suspect, Edward Lee Sheffield of 13140 14th St., Chino, was apprehended by the victim, John Radford Jr. of Montclair. Sheffield was booked in the Ontario jail on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Radford reported that he, his wife and son were walking in the parking lot at 5334 Holt Blvd. when a man in a car tried to run them down, police said. The Radford family escaped injury. Radford said he got into his car and chased the vehicle into Ontario.

In Ontario Radford chased the suspect on foot in the 200 block of Benson Avenue until he finally caught him. Radford held Sheffield until police arrived.

Police said the motive for the alleged incident was unknown.

Ropes used in mountain climbing are usually able to hold 6,000 pounds without breaking.

Walnut resolves impact-study costs, keeps engineering firm

By J. LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Lampman and Associates, contract city engineers, held on to its agreement with the city to perform environmental impact reports (EIRs) when the City Council agreed Wednesday night not to switch to Los Angeles County services for the reports.

Councilmen also voted to proceed with inviting proposals for an exclusive rubbish-hauling franchise, despite a sharp exchange over "franchising out of business" the firm which now serves most Walnut residents.

Concluding a review of EIR costs and procedures initiated last summer by Mayor Richard Laughter, the council voted to let Lampman proceed with an offer made during the review to prepare a "reference EIR" for the city. Lampman representative Noel C. Christensen, who is assigned to work with Walnut, has explained the reference report will cover the entire community, thus cutting costs for most other reports.

Originally, Laughter raised the question of switching to the county because several impact reports were costing well over $1,000, above and beyond the city's monthly $600 retainer with Lampman.

Under the new arrangement, Lampman will prepare the reference EIR at no cost to the city. This would require Walnut to give the firm the business of preparing all other EIRs and "negative declarations," short reports stating a project will have no measurable impact on the community environment.

With this arrangement, Christensen said, most EIRs should cost less than $500 while negative declarations should run no higher than $150.

Councilman Robert Lovemark had no love for the rubbish-hauling franchise contract proposal brought up Wednesday evening. He insisted the city determine a method to reimburse other companies for loss of business when the franchise is granted.

However, Councilman William Cotten countered, "this is not a free enterprise area, anyway." He declared that certain contractors had portions of the city "locked in," and thus there was no competition for business. He led the council's arguments for the proposal, stating the franchise competition would be more fair than current circumstances, while the proposed contract would better service.

Only Lovemark voted against asking for proposals, when the issue came to vote.

Another protest shutdown

Dealer warning: no gas on weekend

By United Press International

Most filling stations were open for business as usual across the nation today, but many dealers warned of another weekend protest shutdown unless the Cost of Living Council allows them to increase retail prices to absorb wholesale increases.

Dealers in New York, Utah, Washington, threatened massive weekend shutdowns, and dealers in other states said they were undecided.

In western New York as many as 500 stations will close in protest this weekend according to Greg Amato, director of the United Gas Dealers of Western New York.

Amoto said Wednesday the entire 200 members of his organization, and between 200 and 300 nonmember operators will lock their doors and pumps at noon Friday and remain closed until Monday morning. He said there are about 800 gas stations in the western New York area.

Salt Lake City motorists were stocking up today for an expected shutdown of 90 per cent of the area's filling stations.

To the north, the Washington Automobile Club of American (AAA) predicted between 85 and 90 per cent of the stations in the state will be closed by the weekend.

"The outlook for this weekend is serious," said William Merry, an AAA spokesman.

A survey of dealers on Washington's Olympic Peninsula Coast indicated they will stay open as long as they have gasoline and not join the shutdown protest. Dealers between Vancouver, B.C., and Portland, Ore, expressed mixed feelings.

California motorists, hit by a four-day shutdown of an estimated 9,400 stations which ended Tuesday, were reported gassing up without problems.

In New Hampshire Wednesday, operators cut their threatened three-day shutdown to one day in answer to an appeal by Gov. Meldrim Thompson, who said he would back dealers in an appeal to Washington.

Dealers in Arkansas said they would wait until the weekend before deciding whether to "shut down and go fishing" or keep their stations open.

Population down in urban areas

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It may be getting a bit less difficult to keep them down on the farm after they've seen Paree, according to the latest figures from the U.S. Census Bureau.

The bureau reported Wednesday that the nation's two biggest metropolitan areas, New York and Los Angeles, actually lost population between 1970 and 1972, along with eight other major urban centers.

The bureau said overall population growth in major metropolitan areas slowed noticeably in the three-year span although it was still inching ahead at the end of last year.

New York's population dropped 0.3 per cent to 9.4 million in the city and suburbs, the census said. Most of the decrease came in the boroughs of Manhattan and Brooklyn.

The Los Angeles area lost only 50,000 people, giving it a total of just under 7 million, but that was enough to knock it back into third place behind metropolitan Chicago, which grew by 107,000 residents to a total of 7,085,000.

The biggest percentage population loss came in Norfolk, Va., which lost almost 5 per cent. Other losers among major metropolitan areas included St. Louis at 5.8 per cent, San Francisco and Wichita Kans., 3.5 per cent each, Washington, D.C. down 1.1 Baltimore 1 per cent, Pittsburgh and Cleveland, down less than 1 per cent each.

In general, the census showed, metropolitan areas over 2 million grew only 0.8 per cent while smaller urban concentrations with populations of 50,000 and more grew 2.2 per cent on the average during the period.

Unwed mother off homecoming ballot

URBANA, Ohio (UPI) — Sharon Boldman, 17, a senior student at Urbana High School, was ruled off the homecoming queen ballot Wednesday by a school principal who told her "only virgins can run for homecoming queen."

Sharon, an unwed mother, continued to attend classes after her baby's birth March 23. She was on the homecoming court last year and was nominated by classmates to reign as queen this year.

She said school Principal Fred Walters told her "only virgins can run for homecoming queen."

"The administration," said School Superintendent Roe W. Hildreth, "feels that those on the court reflect the values of the community."

Sharon's parents filed suit in U.S. District Court in Dayton Wednesday asking that the student election be voided. The voting results were to be announced today.

The suit charged that the administration's action "was taken without any regard to any valid rule or regulations ... and that the (action) merely seeks to punish (Sharon) for past conduct the defendants find offensive."

Chile junta frees eight Americans

SANTIAGO (UPI) — The ruling military junta freed eight Americans Wednesday after two weeks of captivity, but thousands of persons suspected of backing the ousted Marxist government were still being detained in a giant soccer stadium.

The four-man junta, which overthrew the late President Salvador Allende Sept. 11, also said firing squads executed three men accused of killing a policeman, raising to a half-dozen the number of officially reported executions.

The U.S. Embassy reported the release of the eight Americans and said they were all in good shape. A consular official expected them to leave Chile soon.

"We presume they will want to leave the country as soon as possible," an embassy spokesman said. "But we don't have any immediate details on individual travel plans."

The embassy said the eight, apparently the last Americans held by the junta, had been among an estimated 5,000 Chileans and foreigners taken to downtown Santiago's 85,000-seat National Soccer Stadium following the coup.

The embassy identified the freed Americans as the Revs. Francis Flynn and Joseph Dougherty, two Maryknoll priests; the Rev. Charles Welsh, a Holy Cross priest; Prof. James Gordon Ritter, Carol Nezzo, Charles Fisk, David Hathaway and Juan Jose Velasco, a naturalized citizen born in the Dominican Republic.

"But the role of a news agency, just as it was when we started almost 70 years ago, is to furnish spot news coverage, fast, accurately and unbiased. We did not divert sufficient manpower in the early stages of the story. My colleagues and I now wonder if we have diverted too much.

UPI editor says

Interest in Watergate affair fading in foreign papers

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) —H.L. Stevenson, editor in chief and vice president of United Press International, said Tuesday that foreign newspapers outside of the Communist nations are telling their readers a lot about the Watergate scandal, although interest appears to be declining.

Stevenson's remarks came during a panel discussion on news media coverage of the Watergate scandal at the Texas Daily Newspaper Association's convention.

"Foreign reaction to the events arising from what no doubt will rank as history's most famous third rate burglary ranges from apprehension to apathy."

He said the Chinese news agencies have never mentioned Watergate but the scandal may delay UPI's establishment of a bureau in Peking for a couple of years at least.

"China's official media—Peking Radio, provincial radio stations, the Communist party newspaper People's Daily— have never mentioned the Watergate affair or even referred to it obliquely," Stevenson said.

"The Chinese, along with many other nations, seem genuinely confused about the uproar, and the heavy American press coverage has done nothing to reassure our new friends in Peking and some of our old friends elsewhere.

"One thing that worries the Chinese...is that two or three American correspondents might be just as vigorous in pursuing some story in China as their colleagues were in pursuing and publicizing Watergate," he said. "This could lead to complications or friction and the very tenuous relations with the United States could be, in some fashion, thrown off balance."

Stevenson said the European press has given Watergate heavy play although many European journalists feel the American media may be denying President Nixon a fair hearing by its handling of the scandal.

"Except for the Chinese and Russians, it is safe to say that the world knows a great deal about Watergate," Stevenson said.

But he said the story is moving off the front pages in Europe.

"The question of whether we (the American media) are satisfied with the coverage all the way back to last summer will come up in due course

Super Solutions For Bedrooms and Family Rooms

"Although we spend a third of our lives in bedrooms, they always seem to be the rooms we decorate last. And as for family rooms, too often they're still a junk depot for furnishings that have lost favor in other rooms. How to change all that, and not have it cost a fortune?"

Family Weekly women's editor Rosalyn Abrevaya believes that the bedroom should offer the most in physical comfort and visual charm, according to the individual tastes of the occupants. And that the family room has come of age. Easy-care materials and multipurpose furniture have made possible elegant environments that adults can revel in. Look for this very special color section, crammed with specific techniques and ideas for adding a new spark to these two very important parts of the house.

Rating system doesn't rate

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Although I am a regular movie-goer, attending the cinema faithfully once every 10 years if it kills me, many of my friends have been warning me against "The Last Tango in Paris." No one needs to warn me. I've heard and read enough about it, I could write the scenario. Paying $3.50 to watch Marlon Brando take off his pants is not my idea of a rewarding evening.

"Last Tango," like "Deep Throat" and "The World of the Sexualist," are rated G for family entertainment, which I suppose they are, depending upon whose family you're talking about. Some films are rated JG, meaning some juvenile guidance advised so Daddy won't be too shocked by what he sees. No one over 30 admitted unless accompanied by a teen-ager.

The motion picture industry's self-rating system is now five years old. Sponsored by the Motion Picture Association of America, the program promised to label all films as G, suitable for family; X, adults only (perverts and voyeurs), PG, parental caution (for the acne set) and R, restricted, the sex acts merely simulated and the male nudity not frontal but rear-al. It's a fine line.

Opinion Research Corporation recently conducted an "independent survey" at the behest of MPAA to find how the great but rapidly dwindling cinema audience likes the rating system, at all. (MPAA, of course, taking the affirmative, proudly announced that 55 per cent of the public likes the system. Practically a mandate.)

Jack Valenti, the glib president of MPAA, in one of his apologist statements, said, "I think this year's survey shows that despite its flaws, people have learned to use the rating The results: 45 per cent of America's moviegoers didn't like it system." All he has bucking was the National Catholic Office of Motion Pictures which withdrew its support of the rating system, claiming there is too much latitude in the labels.

Lot of elements in the equation, of course. Some people don't mind their kids hearing dirty words, others do. Some people don't mind the children seeing nude women at play but don't like them (the youngsters) to see blood gushing from bullet wounds. Valenti has his hands full, in spite of his artful reference to his 55 per cent approval as "the public's massive vote in favor of the industry's voluntary rating method." How massive can you get?

Since 1968, when the MPAA hurriedly set up its system to forestall the rising opposition to porno-films and skin flicks, 2,175 films have been rated—PG, parentia caution, 22 per cent; R, restricted, 34 per cent, and X (no-no) six per cent.

In other words, in the past five years, the proud motion picture industry has produced only 482 movies (22 per cent) deemed, by their own makers, suitable for family—no sex, no dirty words, no heads unnecessarily cut off.

Anyone for a good magazine?

Erma Bombeck

I swear there are some days of child raising that make you feel like the chicken that sat on a lightbulb for nine months.

I'm not asking for interest on my dividends, mind you . . . only a few meager returns. Get this. My oldest took her car to the garage for repairs last week and used my car while hers was being fixed.

For three days I sat home without wheels (which is like putting Jonathan Livingston Seagull behind a desk!).

On the day her car came back she returned my car keys and said, "Hey, Mom, you owe me $3 for the gas I put in your car ."

I couldn't believe it. This from a child I poured $877 worth of vitamins down. Sewed little bras for her Barbie doll until I nearly went blind. Paid $154 for her old teeth under a pillow. Indulged in $2,000 worth of toys (batteries not included). Foot the bill for 186 skin preparations to kill a single pimple. Sent to camp. Took the sink apart to find her lost class ring. Worried myself sick when she cracked an "A" in Human Sexuality.

I went to my desk and came up with a letter from an 18-year-old girl in Orlando, Fla., who had just finished reading one of my books. "Read this!" I commanded. She read out loud:

"Parents go through life saying to their children, 'I've worked my fingers to the bone for you. I've made sacrifices and what do I get in return?'

"You want an answer, Mrs. Bombeck? You get messy rooms, filthy clothing, disheveled hair, dirty fingernails, raided refrigerators ad auseam. You get something else too. You get someone who loves you but never takes time to tell you in words. You've got someone who'll defend you at every turn even though you do wear orthopedic socks and enjoy listening to Perry Como and changing your underwear everyday and acknowledging their presence in public.

"Yes, sometimes you talked too much and sometimes you turned away too soon. But you laughed with us and cried with us and all the agony, non-communication, frustrations, fears and angers showed us that despite the need to be free and independent and do our own thing . . . you cared.

"And when we leave home, there will be a little tug at our hearts because we know we will miss you and home and everything it meant. But most of all, we will miss the constantly assured knowledge of how very much you love us."

My daughter looked up. Her eyes were misty. "Does this mean I don't get the $3?"

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your judgment regarding a business matter will be faulty today. You'll catch part of your mistake — but not all of it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A misunderstanding with one close to you will not be settled as easily as you hoped. Make every effort to get to the root cause.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you make a mistake in work or service for another, don't try to hide it. It will later surface.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are likely to make a social faux pas that will offend a friend. Make apologies promptly to avoid hard feelings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be overly generous in dealing with another today. Later when you realize it's a poor deal it will be too late.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your haste to get things done today you will take shortcuts. They'll prove to be poor timesavers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You tend to be very extravagant today with money and other possessions. It's not a good day for commercial bargains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you are likely to underestimate those you deal with competitively. This puts you at a disadvantage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your hunches, usually reliable, will lead you astray today. Deal only in hard facts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Friends can't be relied upon to do things for you that you should be doing yourself. Ask no favors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You think someone is holding you in higher esteem than they really are. You must prove yourself in deeds, not words.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will try very hard to sell your ideas to another. This will lead you to exaggerate. Just be yourself.

Do not be discouraged if things don't move as fast as you'd like this year. You will succeed and what you gain will last and be worthwhile.

Dennis Weaver after Gavin's guild gavel

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dennis Weaver, star of the television series "McCloud," announced Tuesday he is challenging John Gavin for the presidency of the Screen Actor's Guild.

The guild is the union that represents 26,000 television and movie performers in dealings with producers. Weaver charged that the union was becoming polarized by political disagreements, guild members who disagreed with the "majority viewpoint" were being ignored, and that union officers who held minority views were dropped from important committees.

Gavin, appearing in the stage musical "Seesaw" in New York, said in a telephone interview that Weaver's charges presented "a distorted view."

3 educators die in plane crash

WEAVERVILLE (UPI) — Three Trinity County educators were killed Tuesday when a light plane crashed shortly after taking off for a flight to Chico.

Witnesses said the single-engine craft ripped through power lines and carreened over a drainage ditch before coming to a halt.

Killed were Steve Searcy, 56, superintendent of the Trinity County High School district, and teachers James Kennedy, 40, Lewiston and Robert C. Ohmstead, 47, Weaverville.

Ohmstead was piloting the plane, which was heading to Chico for an aviation workshop.

London paper says Faisal likes Kissinger proposal

LONDON (UPI) —The Times of London said today U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has put forward a Middle East peace plan that has been accepted as a basis for discussion by King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

The front-page story was signed by Louis Heren, deputy editor of the Times. It said the report was based on "reliable reports from the Middle East."

The Times' New York correspondent quoted State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey as denying the report.

The plan, according to the Times, contained these points:

—Israel to make a partial withdrawal from the Suez Canal, giving up control of both banks to Egypt.

—Sharm-el-Sheikh to be ruled jointly by Egypt and Israel under a condominium plan.

—An area of the Sinai peninsula, to be determined, also to be a condominium.

—Jerusalem to remain part of Israel but Christian and Moslem holy places and privileges to be administered and protected by the Vatican and Jordan, respectively.

—The West Bank to be returned to Jordan but new Israeli settlements to remain.

—Israel to withdraw from parts of the Golan Heights.

The Times said it was understood the plan was discussed at the recent summit meeting of Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

"Its attraction, at least for King Faisal, is that the reputation and influence of Dr. Kissinger are such that the Israeli government will be required to negotiate," The Times said.

Cadillac steering defect cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A steering mechanism defect in 1959-1960 Cadillacs could could lead to "catastrophic loss" of control without warning to the driver, the government has reported.

James B. Gregory, national highway traffic safety administrator, notified Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., that investigators have made an "initial determination" that the safety defect exists.

The possibility of a defect was first brought out before a House subcommittee on commerce and finance, chaired by Moss.

Gregor y said that General Motors, maker of Cadillacs, would have a chance to contest the finding at a hearing Oct. 24.

An estimated 60,000 of the 1959-1960 model Cadillacs were on the road as of last July, Gregory said.

The report by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) said the pitman arm, a critical component of the steering system, was inadequate for repeated high stress maneuvers in the 1959-60 Cadillacs.

"The potential hazard inherently apparent in pitman arm failures is the catastrophic loss of steering control without warning to the driver which inevitably follows," the report said.

4 arrested in Italian fight on cholera

NAPLES, Italy (UPI) — Police arrested four food packaging plant owners Monday on charges of polluting public lands and waters with noxious wastes.

The arrests marked the latest steps in an official campaign to halt a lingering outbreak of cholera.

Health officials meanwhile resumed a second round of anti-cholera vaccinations in the Naples area, where cholera claimed 15 lives.

In Naples, street vendors crowded into the most densely populated areas to sell fruit and vegetables, ignoring a ban placed on sales for reasons of hygiene.

Residents of the areas around the Port of Naples filed protests Monday about the infestation of large rats in their sewers and elsewhere in the city. There were complaints of sand mixed with water in faucets.

The Carabinieri (national police), acting on orders of Magistrate Basilio Gambardella of Gragnano, arrested Francesco D'Auria, 24, Alfonso D'Auria, 24, Mario D'Antuono, 47, and Alfonso Sorrentino, 50, owners of plants on the periphery of San Antonio Abate.

Sorrentino's plant, one of the largest in Naples, employes about 200 workers.

Authorities said the four had been warned previously by the mayor's office that they were violating health laws. Gambardella also accused them of damaging public roads.

Health officials have blamed the cholera outbreak on shellfish tainted by polluted water.

G.M. awarded study for rapid transit

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI) — A $500,000 contract was awarded General Motors by the U.S. Transportation Department to conduct a nine month study of the feasibility of developing a rapid personal transit system using 17-passenger jitneys which would operate with both a driver or under automatic control.

The study is part of the department's Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) to improve the quality of life in urban areas by upgrading transportation.

The first phase of the study was to concentrate on concept and system design with attention "paid to improving the quality of transportation while minimizing initial capital investment, installation time and operating costs," the UMTA said.

The main unit of the proposed system to be designed by GM's engineering staff is a frontwheel drive vehicle with tandem trailing wheels similar to GMC Truck & Coach Division's contemporary motor home, the largest automaker said.

The vehicle would have a low floorline for easy entry and exit, and would allow curbside passenger pickup along suburban residential streets on a "dial-a-ride" basis.

The second phase would consist of construction, testing and evaluation of prototypes at the transportation department's test center at Pueblo, Colo., while the final phase is expected to bring the dual-mode systems into service in cities by 1980.

A brief word about...

Stennis urges Pentagon to go and recruit girls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Armed Services Committe chairman John C. Stennis is telling the Pentagon to go out and recruit girls if the volunteer Army is not filling its quota.

The Mississippi Democrat was one of the few in Congress who resisted the enthusiasm for an all volunteer Army. In a speech prepared for delivery today, he said he will not consider any legislation to restore the draft for at least two years.

"I have no patience for those in the military uniform two years ago who were beating the drums for the all-volunteer concept, and who are now saying it won't work," Stennis said.

Enlistments since the draft expired last June 30 have been lower than expected, and some Pentagon manpower experts feel the draft may have to be restored soon.

Stennis said more women could be recruited, for one thing.

"I think young girls who are willing to go into the service should be encouraged," he said. "It seems to me that they should be given more and more places and used more and more by the services, especially the Air Force and the Army, but not for combat," he said. "They are an abundant source of talent and more extensive experiments of their use should be made."

Stennis said he would support "all reasonable measures" to make the volunteer Army work. But said he was firmly opposed to any move to restore the draft.

Eyed governorship in '60, says Daley

CHICAGO (UPI) —Mayor Richard J. Daley has disclosed he considered running for governor of Illinois in 1960, but decided against it in favor of working for the election of John F. Kennedy to the presidency.

In a taped interview with Chicago television interviewer Bob Kennedy on WLS-TV, Daley said Tuesday, "I thought we could do the things we wanted as mayor and help John Kennedy become president because I felt it was more important to elect a great President and continue the programs I started."

Asked whether he would run again for the mayoralty, Daley said "I'll give it a lot of consideration before 1975. I don't know right now because it's a very serious question."

It wasn't a joke; she carried a gun

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police said a fat woman in a floppy suede hat and bulging blue coat pointed a gun at a bank teller Monday and escaped with about $700.

Officers said the woman waited in line at a Wells Fargo bank branch on Irving Street until she reached teller Denise Gardner, then handed over a note demanding money.

"Is this some kind of joke?" the teller asked.

The fat woman then pointed a .38-caliber revolver at the teller, who quickly passed the money over. The woman disappeared in the crowd on the street, police said.

Gridders halt game, gang-tackle suspect

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —"Stop the thief!" a bank official screamed as a middle-aged man ran across the street and onto a park playing field, where a foobtall game was in progress Tuesday.

Six of the players chased the suspect, tackled him and held him down until police were summoned.

Tourist bus carrying elderly plunges into dam; at least 15 die

SYDNEY (UPI) —At least 15 elderly persons were killed and 23 seriously injured today when a tourist bus plunged into the Tumut Ponds Dam in snow-covered mountains about 300 miles southwest of Sydney, police said.

A spokesman for the Adaminaby police station a few miles from Tumut said the accident occurred as the bus, carrying old age pensioners on a sightseeing expedition from Adelaide, was climbing a steep pass from the dam wall.

George Stewart, a nearby resident who was one of the first to arrive at the crash site, said the bus had suddenly stopped, then slipped backward over the dam wall and plunged over it into about 200 feet of water.

It was not known how many passengers were aboard the bus.

Thick fog and cold, wet conditions were hampering rescue operations, Stewart said.

Vietnamese Reds will not search for U.S. MIA's

SAIGON (UPI) —Vietnamese Communists Saturday said they could not help in the search for more than 2,000 dead and missing Americans in Indochina while political prisoners remain in South Vietnamese jails.

"How can the Vietnamese people enthusiastically get information about the U.S. missing in action while their relatives are still detained in the prisons of that (South Vietnam) side?" asked North Vietnamese Maj. Pham Phu Binh, spokesman for the Hanoi delegation to the four-party Joint Military Team .

Family food basket cost at record high

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Agriculture Department acknowledged Tuesday what American housewives have known for over a month: the cost of an average family's market basket rose faster in August than any time since 1946 and now is at an all time high.

A monthly report from the department said typical food costs for a hypothetical family of 3.2 people jumped $2.38 a week after President Nixon lifted most food ceilings in July. It now stands at $31.79, up $6.30 from a year ago.

The cost of beef, which theoretically remained frozen at mid-summer levels until Sept. 12, rose from $1.36 a pound to a record $1.44 by the end of August.

Nixon vetoes bill to hike SBA aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon vetoed legislation Saturday to increase the Small Business Administration's capacity to provide disaster aid. He said it would have resulted in "unnecessary expense" and "a backward march" for federal relief programs.

In a message to Congress, Nixon said he was "compelled to veto" the measure although he is in "complete accord" with the objectives.

"Unfortunately this legislation is also burdened with several extremely undesireable features —provisions which would represent a backward march for the federal government's disaster relief programs," he said.

Dividend declared

POMONA — The board of directors of the California Shopping Centers Inc. declared a quarterly distribution of 21 cents per share at its meeting on Sept. 15.

California Shopping Centers owns and manages commercial and residential properties in California, Nevada and Arizona, including The Village Apartments in Diamond Bar.

Obscenity battle going unevenly across U.S.

By United Press International

This is how the nation is reacting three months after the Supreme Court ruling that movies, entertainment, books and magazines can be banned for violating "prevailing community standards."

—San Francisco go-go dancers wore pasties.

—Arizona authorities cracked down on the sale of "blue" material and forced the closing of a number of bookstores. Movie houses are continually raided.

—A jury in Little Rock, Ark., ruled "Deep Throat", a film that attracted wider audiences than previous sex movies, obscene under state statutes.

In other localities, however, the response was not as decisive. In Los Angeles and Jacksonville, Fla., "Deep Throat" was ruled acceptable. In the Los Angeles case a suit filed by State Sen. John Harmer claiming the film was a "public nuisance" under the California red light abatement law was turned down by a judge who ruled the law did not apply to movies. It was originally aimed at closing down brothels.

The Supreme Court ruled June 21 that movies, entertainment and reading material could be judged on "prevailing community standards." The immediate, but often short-lived, response in many places was to try to shut down the "dirty movies" and close down the magazine racks.

In New York, however, a judge ruled the state obscenity law unconstitutional. The Indiana Supreme Court Aug. 21 said that state's law was too vague, and a Rock Island, Ill., judge used the same reason for throwing out charges against two adult movie house operators.

Times Square in New York continues to glare with lights advertising sex movies, but films that can be shown in Manhattan may not be acceptable i nother boroughs.

Three movie houses in Honolulu's seamy Hotel Street district were shut down for two days after police raids, but they re-opened later the same week with little change in their programs.

In Washington, D.C, Friday, a jury delivered an innocent verdict in the case of a New York distributor charged with carrying the movie "Distortions of Sexuality" across state lines.

Despite the minimal clothing the San Francisco dancers have started wearing, the bookstores and movie houses are still open, and the dancers still aren't really wearing very much.

Group formed to fight Reagan tax proposition

LOSANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti and former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Tuesday announced the formation of a statewide organization to campaign against passage of Proposition 1, Gov. Reagan's controversial tax limitation initiative.

Bradley said the initiative, which will appear on the Nov. 6 special election ballot, would have a "devastating" effect on cities and counties trying to hold down local taxes.

The measure would impose limitations on government spending and taxing, but Moretti, D-Van Nuys, said the governor already had those powers without writing them into the state constitution.

Brown, announcing the formation of California Taxpayers Against Proposition I, said the proposal "is an attack on our whole system of representative government."

Sir Mordred murders hand

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We are not going to name the knight of the round table who sat South. We don't want to be challenged to mortal combat. Suffice to say that the wily Mordred, sitting West, really fixed him.

Mordred opened the jack of hearts. South saw that he had to win the trick and go after clubs. You readers, looking right at all the cards, can see that since West holds both club honors, South is sure to make his contract, but watch the wily Mordred in operation.

South led the ace of clubs and Mordred dropped the queen. He continued and Mordred played the nine. South was fooled and decided that Mordred had started with doubleton queen-nine. So South rose with dummy's king and succeeded in working a diamond finesse.

Then South cashed the ace, king and queen of spades while Mordred dropped the eight, 10 and jack.

It became evident to South that Mordred had started with 3-5-3-2 and not 4-5-1-3 distribution.

South decided Mordred had been dealt three spades, five hearts, three diamonds and two clubs so that a high heart lead would end-play him.

It did, all right. Mordred fanned his hand for the rest of the tricks.

Prince makes point clear: not engaged

ABERDEEN, Scotland (UPI) —"By the way, gentlemen," Prince Charles told reporters, "I am not engaged. I hope you have got that clear."

Charles, the 24-year-old heir to the British throne, flew to Aberdeen on vacation, during which a London Sunday newspaper reported his impending engagement to Lady Jane Wellesley, daughter of the Duke of Wellington.

Buckingham Palace dismissed the newspaper report as "pure speculation." Charles took it further Tuesday night with his sudden comment to newsmen.

"There seem to be hundreds of you wherever I go," he said.

City planners okay 10-story condominium

POMONA — Developers of a proposed 10-story, 100-unit condominium structure across from the Pomona Civic Center Wednesday night got approval to proceed.

The Pomona Planning Commission approved an environmental impact report, conditional use permit and several variances. Planners also recommended vacation of a street and aliey and inclusion of additional property in a redevelopment district overlay. The latter two items will go to the City Council for final action.

Thomas W. Scott of Pasadena proposes to construct two 10-story towers with an elevator system on two acres generally bounded by Park and Parcels avenues, Seventh Street and an alley behind the Barrister Building.

The total project is expected to represent a $4 million investment. Work may begin this year. Scott said he plans to build the first tower with 50 two-bedroom condominiums, then build the second increment when sales warrant.

Planners had considered the proposed development at their Sept. 12 meeting. They postponed action on the use permit and variances and requested the developer to present new plans which included three additional parcels at the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventh Street. The applicant doesn't own this land.

Addition of the corner property would make the project more compatible with most city ordinances, except for some setbacks in certain areas.

The commission, however, did recommend the redevelopment district overlay for that area be included in the original application. The City Council Monday night approved the overlay.

In action Wednesday night, planners recommended adding to the redevelopment overlay property containing the Barrister Building located south of Mission Boulevard between Parcels and Park avenues and also a corner parcel at the northwest corner of Park and Seventh Street.

The planning staff, in proposing the action, noted this would give reasonable and logical boundaries to the district; would help to insure development consistent and harmonious with projects in which the city may have a direct involvement; and additional controls would be consistent with the city's efforts to improve the area surrounding the Civic Center.

Regarding the use permit and variances, the staff said approval was for the concept only and some changes might be made by the architect as refinements are made. Any major changes, however, would be returned to the commission for approval.

The variances were for side and rear yard setback requirements, open spaces, landscaping and recreational vehicle storage.

The vacations involve that portion of Sixth Street between Park and Parcels avenues and also an alley between these two streets.

The City Council will consider the overlay inclusion at its Oct. 8 session and will hold a public hearing over the street closure on Oct. 15.

In another matter, the commission approved a use permit for the White Avenue Baptist Church, 675 S. White Ave., to operate a preschool Head Start program.

Some 30 children are expected to be enrolled. The church plant was reported to have adequate recreational facilities.

Planners also granted a tentative tract to convert 11 apartment house structures, each containing four units, from a rental development into a condominium project. These buildings are located at 3106 and 3126 N. Garey Ave.

2 arrested in off-track betting scheme at fair

POMONA — Two Las Vegas men were arrested at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds race track Wednesday afternoon and charged with illegally transmitting horse race odds and results from the track.

The men are John Colin McGuire, 36, and Lawrence Lemuel McGuire, 29. They are card dealers at a Las Vegas casino and are believed to be brothers. They were booked under a section of the state Penal Code which prohibits transmitting race track odds and results for gambling purposes.

Investigators gave this account of the incident:

John McGuire was observed using hand signals from the track's club house area apparently to Lawrence McGuire who was standing outside the track at a public telephone about 500 yards away. Lawrence McGuire was using binoculars to watch the other McGuire signals. After receiving the signals, having to do with prerace odds and then the result of the race, Lawrence McGuire placed calls on the telephone, presumably to Las Vegas.

Police and race track security officers arrested both men after the first race.

Nonreligious Christmas theme urged for plaza

POMONA — The Cultural Arts Commission will recommend to City Council Monday at 8 p.m. that the Civic Center Plaza be decorated Dec. 8-26, in a "Night Before Christmas" theme.

Commissioners, meeting until 11 p.m. Wednesday, also will recommend that interested community groups be scheduled to perform in the plaza during the holiday season.

Assistant City Administrator Joseph F. Korpsak said commissioners directed that religious themes should be avoided in the decorating effort.

"Basically, what decorations will consist of will be something the staff will explore, with council approval," Korpsak said.

A central part of the decorations could be a Christmas tree which would be lighted by Mayor Ray J. Lepire.

Commissioners specified the cost of the display is not to exceed $5,000 and that it is to emphasize artistic quality and lighting quantity as well as appropriate placement of decorations.

Korpsak said that if council approval is received on the project, it will be coordinated by Jack Reynolds, maintenance services superintendent.

In another action,the commission agreed to recommend to City Council that funding of $1,500 be granted Valley Concert Dance Theater for its Christmas presentation of the Nutcracker Ballet.

Teachers favor arbitration bill; school board opposes it

POMONA — While Senate Bill 400, the teacher bargaining rights bill, rests on Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk awaiting either his signature or his veto, strong support and equally strong opposition to it were voiced in Pomona Tuesday.

If signed into law, the legislation, authored by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, does not authorize teachers to strike, but provides as a substitute a neutral arbitrator to be called when there are impasses in negotiations to make nonbinding recommendations for settlements.

The bill provides for secret ballot representation elections so the majority of teachers in a district would name an exclusive bargaining agent.

It would require school boards to negotiate in good faith with the organization named by the teachers. It would require public negotiations, and allow teachers who did not want to join the association to pay a fee equivalent to dues to the association.

At the school board meeting Tuesday, Judson F. Ellson, president of Associated Pomona Teachers, said: "Teachers feel passage of Senate Bill 400 would be a landmark decision and do much to improve the quality of education in California."

His statement followed a comment by trustee Don Donnelly that should Reagan sign the bill "it could drastically change the whole horizon of teacher relations."

While no official board action has been taken, it is the general consensus of the school board to oppose Senate Bill 400, Donnelly said.

Supt. Robert E. Wentz, at the direction of the school board, has written Reagan recommending that he veto the bill.

In the past, Reagan has opposed giving full collective bargaining rights to public employes.

Strongly in support of Senate Bill 400 are the California Teachers Association, the American Federation of Teachers and the United Teachers of Los Angeles.

4 local residents win fair awards

POMONA — Local residents have won blue ribbons in agricultural and horticultural projects at the Los Angeles County Fair.

In the 4-H competition, Frances Abacherli took first for an exhibit of corn seed, while Leon Abacherli was given a first for an exhibit of fresh pears, and Lisa Abacherli took a blue ribbon for her exhibit of pasture grass seed.

Wes Crozen, competing in the college students agricultural and horticultural section, won blue ribbons for exhibits of clover seed, alfalfa seed, sweet corn, apples, avocadoes, grapes, lemons, pears and plums.

THE CROONER

Progress - Bulletin reporter Lange Winckler, smartly attired, vainly attempts to croon some porkers in the annual hog-calling contest at the Los Angeles County Fair, but there were too many pros for the Claremont resident.

Marines plan open house at the new station

POMONA — Open house will be held at the new Marine Corps recruiting station at suite 150, the Speidel Building, 300 S. Park Ave., Saturday at 10 a.m.

Coffee and cookies will be furnished and served by the Navy Mothers Club, Pomona Chapter 444.

Music will be furnished by the Third Marine Air Wing Band from El Toro Marine Air Station.

The recruiting station, manned by staff sergeants John Buckley and John Eberle, serves the Pomona Valley cities of Pomona, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas and Diamond Bar.

Opened for operation July 1, the station offers consolidating recruiting services in that a person interested in the Marine Reserve, the regular service, enlisted man or officer programs may visit the office to find out about any of them.

THE WHISPERING WINNER

Ontario Mayor Howard Snider deftly demonstrates to about 400 visitors at the Los Angeles County Fair that he knows his pigs and won the blue ribbon in the annual hog-calling contest. Snider whispered, "Sooey, sooey, here pig, here pig" into the microphone Wednesday and the animals promptly responded to his chants. Many entries were attracted to the contest.

Singer bombs out in sty debut

Pigs have no ear for music!

By J. LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, the saying goes, and you also can't make a flock of indolent sows into appreciators of quality music.

Spurred on, I am sure, by malevolent, mischievious co-workers, this reporter did his high-pitched best Wednesday to lure a pile of Chester White sows from far corners of show ring No. 2 during the Los Angeles County Fair's annual hog-calling contest. But other than a frisky romp by a pair of the "ladies" across the ring, they ignored me.

No singer can stand to be ignored. It was worse than ducking rotten tomatores. Even as I wooed the beasties with the strains of a swineherd's song, they nestled deeper through the sawdust to enjoy the cool dirt of the floor. The mimicing, red-eyed creatures were a bunch of pigs.

What had to be the worst experience of all, however, was to not even place among the top five of the 14 contestants. While all the others offered variations of "Soooco-ie! Pig! Pig! Pig!" I at least sang of the virtures of slop. And who won? None other than Ontario Mayor Howard Snider.

He did have an edge, one he acknowledged at the outset might be embarrassing for a politician: The sows loved him.

They nibbled at his fingers, submitted with wary watchfulness to tender swabs behind the ears, and one rooted her snout under the wooden two-by-four competitors' box to move nearer this man of delights.

There was some compensation, anyhow. The contest gave each contestant a pound of bacon. At today's prices for meat, that's enough enticement for anyone to get up in a crowd and make a darned fool of himself.

New entertainment features

Fair freshens up for final weekend

POMONA — The Los Angeles County Fair moves into its final weekend with a new lineup of free entertainment features and with perishable items in exhibits replaced to give the fair the look of opening-day freshness.

The world's largest county fair, blessed by fair weather, will close next Sunday with total attendance expected at nearly 1.25 million.

A total of 869,666 persons already has visited the fair, including 46,836 who went through the turnstiles Wednesday. In 1972, 902,018 visited the fair during the first 13 days, including 48,881 on the second Wednesday.

The California Lutheran Church Bank from Thousands Oaks headlines a free 10-show program in the Amphitheater that starts at 10 a.m. Friday and runs to 8:30 p.m.

Other free entertainment is offered in the Mexican Village, Schools Exhibit Building, and the Plaza of the States bandwagon.

Demonstrations of a wide range of crafts are scheduled in the Home Arts Show, Fine Arts in Action, the Junior Fair, and the Dairy Barn.

Pinto Breeders and Exhibitors Association will present a free horse show starting at 8 a.m. in the Carnation Ring.

Lincoln School of Pomona will present folk dances at the Schools Exhibit at 2 p.m. The Pomona Recreation Department will put on a variety show on the same stage at 7 p.m.

The second go-round of the Rodeo Cowboys Association championship rodeo will start at 8 p.m. Friday as the free evening grandstand show.

Sign language class scheduled

POMONA — Pomona Adult School is offering a deaf sign language class each Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Garey High School.

Miss Lenore Healey is the teacher.

Those interested in enrolling may call the adult office at 623-5251, extension 249.

Mariachi players divert thoughts of councilmen

POMONA — Heavy thoughts of how to run a multimillion governmental agency were lifted from the minds of city councilmen here Monday night by a 12-piece mariachi band from Boys Town in Monterrey, Mexico, which gave an impromptu concert during the council meeting.

The boys, ranging in age from 6 to 16, were brought to the meeting by Father Carlos Alvarez, director of La Ciudad de los Ninos, as a gesture of friendship from Pomona's sister city, at the invitation of Councilman Adrian Wright, chairman of the sister city program.

The band appears nightly at the Mexican Village of the Los Angeles County Fair. Father Alvarez told the council he had founded the boys' community, patterned after the original one in Nebraska, 22 years ago, and that the band has been traveling for the past 20 years, spreading good will and selling the project.

The youths played at the Olympics in Germany last year.

Move to get project on federal list

Claremont mayor adds support to Foothill Fwy.

By GEORGE MacLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Mayor Craig McManigal has become the sixth mayor of 18 cities along the proposed Foothill Freeway to sign a letter to the state director of transportation strongly urging the freeway be included in the Interstate System as Interstate 210.

Harold A. Bailin, calling himself coordinator of Mayors Task Force Group for Construction of Foothill Freeway and president of the Foothill Freeway Association, visited the City Council meeting Tuesday night and told councilmen that "There is a freeway. It will be here. The question is when."

An Upland Councilman, Bailin said the freeway would complete "a major natural transportation corridor from Sylmar at the north end of the Los Angeles basin to Redlands at the eastern extremity."

Bailin said that the task force group understands and supports James A. Moe, director of the California Department of Transportation, in his philosphy of transportation and also supports fully Moe's proposals for the 1973 Federal Highway Act.

Bailin said that in evaluating the actions of Congress and realizing that the 1973 Federal Highway Act may be passed without the inclusion of California's many proposals, "we are of the considered opinion that our transportation problems must be resolved in relation to the final act. This would require inclusion of the Foothill Freeway in the Interstate System as a chargeable route to secure a priority for funding for the continued growth of this region's economy."

"We need your help to get the freeway moving," Bailin told the council.

"There's no way you're going to get this council to authorize the mayor to sign something the same night it is received," Mayor Criag McManigal commented.

Councilman Frank Hungerford noted that Claremont is probably the only city to put the Foothill Freeway matter on the ballot and moved to authorize McManigal to sign the letter to Moe.

Councilwoman Claire McDonald smiled, and said, "I think it's a mere gesture, Hal."

The letter already has been signed by Abner B. Haldeman, mayor of Arcadia; A. Carl Meseck, mayor of Glendale; and Donald F. Yokaitis, mayor of Pasadena.

Bailin needs to attend only 12 more council meetings to obtain signatures of other mayors along the freeway route.

Copies of the letter will be sent to three congressmen, two assemblymen and a senator.

EDITORIAL

Opinion

The cape: Florida fights to switch

The government's interagency Board on Geographic Names will meet in Washington on Oct. 9 to consider some 50 or 60 changes in place names or spellings. One of the proposals the five-man board will consider will be to change the name of Cape Kennedy back to its original Cape Canaveral.

Chances are good that the change will be adopted.

It was during the outpouring of national grief following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 that the board approved of honoring him by giving the space-launching site his name.

The decision brought immediate protests from many Floridians, who pointed out that Cape Canaveral was one of the oldest names in the United States, having appeared on maps for over 400 years.

In the years following, numerous bills were introduced in Congress to restore the name. Last spring the Florida legislature passed a bill to that effect and it was signed by Gov. Reubin Askew.

It is because the official federal name for the cape now disagrees with the official state name, and also in response to requests from several members of Florida's congressional delegation, that the board will meet to reconsider its 1963 decision.

If the board does approve the proposal, it should in no way be considered a reflection on the late president. The actual space facility on the cape, whose name is not under the board's control and is not being considered for change, will continue to bear his name.

In the meantime, any persons having pertinent information or comment on the proposed change can write to Lester F. Dingman, executive secretary. Domestic Geographic Names, 2100 M Street N.W., Washington, D.C., 20244, before the October meeting.

Cocoon Club--- who wants in!

One of the more exclusive clubs in the world — whose membership is entirely involuntary — is the "Caterpillar Club" for people whose lives have been saved by parachuting from disabled aircraft.

It was started in 1922 by pioneer parachutist Leslie L. Irvin, who chose the caterpillar because it signified a silk-worm lowering itself safely to the ground on a strand of silk, the basic material for most parachutes.

The company Irvin founded a few years before then still makes parachutes today but is also a leading developer and manufacturer of automotive safety products.

Appropriately, Irvin Industries, Inc., of Greenwich, Conn., has just announced the inauguration of a new club which nobody will really want to join — the "Cocoon Club" for people who have been saved from death or serious injury by the successful deployment of an air bag in an automobile accident.

The Caterpillar Club has more than 350,000 members throughout the world. How many the Cocoon Club will eventually have depends upon whether the government approves the air bag, which is the leading contender for a "passive restraint" safety system mandated for cars beginning with 1976 models.

But according to Irvin president Eugene P. Conese, there are already a number of people whose lives have been saved by experimental air bags and they will be included into the elite group shortly. Also, membership is expected to increase sharply since General Motors is offering an air bag system as optional equipment on some of its 1974 models.

Just as Caterpillar Club members wear a gold pin in the shape of a caterpillar and receive a certificate of membership, Cocoon Club members will receive a similar pin in the form of a cocoon, along with an official membership document.

Trade break

The United States' balance of trade has been a worrisome thing for quite a while. But things seem to be looking up.

Whereas a deficit had again been predicted for this year, U.S. exports started building up early, and now it looks as if there may be for all practical purposes an even balance by the end of 1973.

Through July of this year exports rose by one third, hitting an annual rate of more than $65 billion. That is some $16 billion above last year. Imports rose, too, but at a slower 20 percent rate.

No one took too seriously early predictions from a few brave sources in Washington that such a turnaround would occur. It is pleasant to have the doomsayers wrong.

Howard Hughes' $100,000 to Nixon

LAS VEGAS — Senate sleuths are investigating two $50,000 contributions to President Nixon from billionaire Howard Hughes. The money was handed over in cash to the President's friend, Bebe Rebozo, in 1969 and 1970.

Although Hughes' aides describe the $100,000 as a "campaign contribution," the President wasn't running for office in 1969 or 1970. The Senate Watergate Committee is investigating reports that the money may have been diverted to the President's personal use.

This is vigorously denied by White House spokesman Gerard Warren, who said: "The President never received any such money." Rebozo refused to comment on the charges. Sources close to him, however, stated that neither he nor the President have ever used campaign money for personal purposes.

We first reported on Aug. 6, 1971, that Hughes' aides "siphoned off $100,000 from the Silver Slipper, a Hughes gambling emporium, for Nixon's campaign. The money was delivered by Richard Danner, a Hughes exec, to Bebe Rebozo, a Nixon confidant."

Started in '69

Watergate investigators have now verified our story from some of the principals. The payments to Nixon, the probers have been told, began in late 1969 at a time when Hughes was consolidating his hotel-casino empire in Nevada. His private papers, which have been made available to us, show he was trying to overcome resistance from the Justice Department's antitrust division.

The first $50,000 was slipped to Rebozo in late 1969 not long after the President personally approved Hughes' purchase of the airline, Air West. The money was delivered by Hughes hotelman Dick Danner to Rebozo, the Senate investigators have been told.

The second $50,000 contribution was made in the summer of 1970 when Hughes became the largest casino operator in the world with the purchase of Harrold's Club in Nevada. Again, it was Danner who passed the money to Rebozo. But this time, another Hughes factotum, Robert Maheu, witnessed the transaction. We have learned that Maheu spoke candidly to the committee about the deal.

Witnesses have told the Watergate investigators that the $100,000 positively was intended for Nixon, not Rebozo. What the President did with the money, if he received it, remains a myster.

In 1969 and 1970, he was completing the purchase of his San Clemente estate. Both Rebozo and another Nixon crony, aerosol king Robert Abplanalp, participated in the acquisition.

The financial details were handled by the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who has denied that any campaign contributions were used.

FOOTNOTE: More than a decade earlier, then-Vice President Nixon was hit by a blast of bad publicity over a $205,000 loan, which his brother Donald received from the same Howard Hughes. The loan was secured by a mortgage on a Whittier lot that cost $13,000. The loan was never repaid.

PAINFUL PILGRIMAGE: Families of American servicemen missing in action in Indochina are planning a painful pilgrimage to Laos for news of their 400 unforgotten loved ones.

The relatives hope to set up a "mercy vigil" at the Vientiane talks between the Communist Pathet Lao and the royal government. In an initial agreement, the two sides agreed to repatriate all prisoners and to pass on information about all missing men.

This stirred a breath of hope here at the National League of Families which is still seeking to learn the fate of the 1,300 men missing in Indochina, some 400 of them in or near Laos.

In recent days, the league's energetic head, Iris Powers, and executive director, retired Air Force Col. Scott Albright, both of whom have sons missing, have been contacting members of families who, like themselves, still are torn between hope and resignation.

"A show of numbers may produce some shred of information," Albright, a chipper but sad-eyed man told us. "We hope to fill every hotel room in Vientiane during the talks."

An American military team has already been organized in Thailand and only awaits permission from the Communists to scour the jungles and mountains for news. Impractical as it sounds, several grey-haired mothers have begged to go from village to village in the treacherous terrain in quest of word on their sons' fates.

FOOTNOTE: The National League of Families, all but forgotten now that it has won the fight to get the living home from Vietnam, is so broke that it depends almost entirely on voluntary help and the kindness of the American Legion which gives them rent-free office space.

Gallstones dissolved by chemical

Probably 15 million Americans have gallstones. Presently, surgical removal is generally recommended and the sooner the better.

But specialists at Mayo's are experimenting with a chemical for dissolving gallstones. Results of their experiments will be published in the next issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Drs. Johnson Thistle and Alan Hofman of the Mayo Clinic have been "dissolving" gallstones with "pills"; chenodeoxycholic acid.

Within six months, 11 of 18 patients receiving the drug had a measureable decrease in the size and-or number of gallstones.

Of seven other persons who have been on the treatment for two to three years, three now have no gallstones, and in three of the other four patients the gallstones continue to decrease in size.

Gallstones are composed mostly of cholesterol. Very many persons go to their graves of other causes never knowing that they have these "rocks" in the gallbladder.

In others the stones "travel," block bile ducts, trigger inflammation, infection and require immediate and somewhat hazardous surgery.

It is inconceivable that all persons would respond similarly to any remedy because of the variables in human chemistry. Why cholesterol crystalizes in the first place in some persons and not in others is uncertain.

But if the condition is controllable, the root cause is academic. And the chenodeoxycholic acid administered in compound foreign to the human body; it is in fact a natural constituent of human bile. Then why is "cheno" not generally available?

Toxicity tests in the Rhesus monkey suggest that the drug — in this particular species — may cause liver damage. Protracted testing is necessary to ascertain the extent, if any, of side-effects in humans, though to date side-effects in humans appear insignificant.

Beginning next year, your tax dollars will finance a national co-operative trial of "cheno" on 1,000 patients sponsored by the National Institutes of Health.

Mayo's research has established that chenodeoxycholic acid does dissolve existing gallstones. The additional study is needed to show that the drug is safe, to determine the best dosage and also to satisfy the requirements of the Food and Drug Administration as to long-range effects.

But many researchers are sufficiently encouraged to expect that within a decade we'll be dissolving more gallstones than we will be removing surgically.

Sacredness of life

A letter entitled Abortion Decision and written by Henri P. St. Charles of Pomona is directed against the Vatican theology of the 19th century, but leaves the impression that opposition to this practice comes exclusively from that source.

Long before the 19th century, the primitive Christian movement met the pagan practices of Roman society with the charge that abortion is involved in "the way of death" and is condemned by "the way of life."

"The Two Ways" based on Sermon on the Mount and the 10 Commandments is preserved in both The Epistle of Barnabus and the Didache, or The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles. Likewise in their second century apologies, Athenagoras and Tertullian opposed abortion as the destruction of human life.

To preserve the sanctity of human life, taught in the whole Judeo-Christian tradition, the Roman Empire later enacted laws against abortion and this imperial legislation was carried into the codes of European nations and American states.

In fairness to the Primitive Church it should be said that she not only lifted a banner for the sacredness of human life, but also proclaimed a saviour for sinners — that One who bore our sins in His own body on the tree — by whose stripes we are healed. — William C. Robinson, Claremont.

High speed chases

I have a theory that's bugged me for 20 years. That is the high speed police pursuits in this so-called modern age. They are the most stupid things that I can think of.

For many years police vehicles have had the capability of equaling or surpassing the speed of any stock vehicle. Often these high speed chases involve some stupid kid and too many times it has ended up with some innocent person being killed, shot, or otherwise.

Since all police agencies have immediate radio communication with one another, a high speed chase is not necessary. I say observe the vehicle, get the description and license number, and keep it under surveillance if possible.

Broadcast the description and police cars could close in on it without red lights and screamers. Even if the car had to be kept under surveillance all the way to San Francisco, it would be better than having some innocent motorist being killed. — Roy Mingus, Pomona.

Gossip for today

Who is to say that the age of miracles is long gone?

Although pollution authorities claim it will cost $275 billion over a period of 10 years to clean up the environment. (Annual damage from pollution has now reached $25 billion), a more optimistic President Nixon has proclaimed a "Clean Up Amecica Month."

And speaking of miracles, someday somebody is going to find something wrong with Ralph Nader, and then the millennium will have arrived.

In the meantime, while waiting for those wonders to happen, take heart in the knowledge that some of our best scientific minds have at least struck a minor blow at litter and pollution by inventing a no-melt ice cream.

INSIDE REPORT

Agnew stands pat on his innocence

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Headline speculation about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's imminent resignation has now all but persuaded Agnew to prepare a "flat denial" to be issued not at a press conference but through some unidentified forum that would dramatically reach the nation.

The timing is uncertain, but Agnew's mood is not. He has no present intention of resigning, which his friends claim would amount to a confession of guilt. But Agnew refused repeated requests for prepublication comment on the carefully written speculative story by the Washington Post's highly reliable David Broder, who attributed the prediction to "a senior Republication figure strongly in Agnew's corner."

Agnew's refusal to deny the speculation was in keeping with his reluctance to make official denials of the swarm of speculative stories about his intentions amid the worst political storm ever to strike a Vice President.

The "senior Republican figure," according to Agnew's friends, is not Sen. Barry Goldwater, as has been widely rumored, but instead some other Agnew confidant who has seen Agnew for long and intimate discussions in the past few weeks. Out of these discussions emerged the possible rationale for an Agnew resignation.

As has been widely reported, Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson may send the allegations and evidence against Agnew to the House of Representatives rather than seek a criminal indictment. Agnew worries deeply about two possible results if that happens.

House might not resolve matter

First, the House might fail to come to grips with his impeachment, neither voting for impeachment (in effect, an indictment leading to an actual trial in the Senate) nor voting to exonerate Agnew. Should that happen, Agnew would never rid himself of the cloud of guilt.

Second, if the House did come to grips with his impeachment, the process might unleash such a vicious, political struggle that the country, already weakened by the Watergate scandals, could be further polarized to cause serious and permanent damage.

It was lengthy conversation along these lines with the "senior Republican figure" which led to the reports that Agnew was on the verge of quitting, his friends believe. By last Friday, in fact, rumors that Agnew had indeed decided to resign were flying wildly in Washington.

As one example of the wild atmosphere Friday, the Justice Department was informed by a wire service reporter that Newsweek had decided to change its cover at the last minute and replace the late President Allende of Chile with Agnew. Did that mean Agnew was about to quit? The Justice Department declined comment. Newsweek indeed considered a change in its cover but in the end decided against it.

One reason for Friday's seething rumors was a subtle change in phraseology at the Justice Department to answer questions about the conspiracy charges against the Vice President.

Speculation on Richardson's action

Until last Thursday, the department had invariably answered questions by saying "no decision" had been made on whether to send the Agnew case to the grand jury (for routine U.S. prosecution), or to the House for non-routine impeachment proceedings. On Thursday, "no decision" became "no comment" — indicating that Richardson was on the verge of momentous decisions involving Agnew.

In fact, it is still unknown how Richardson will decide the question of whether Agnew can be tried before a federal court while sitting as Vice President or whether he must first be removed from office by impeachment.

By Saturday, those rumors had convinced some high administration officials not only that Agnew would quit but that he would be replaced by Richardson. Moreover, they coincided with Agnew's decision to talk out his deepest worries with his political allies, one of whom leaked the Vice President's concern.

However, Agnew's friends downgrade his private expressions of possible resignations by comparing them to President Nixon's similar feelings, revealed to his family two months ago and reported to the press by his daughter, Julie Eisenhower. In each case, they say, the hard decision actually to resign was not approached.

Whatever Richardson may decide and however the charges against him may turn out, Agnew insists to his friends that he genuinely believes himself to be innocent. Thus, to quit and leave himself open to charges that his resignation was a self-confession of guilt, is viewed by the Vice President and his friends as the worst possible course — no matter what he confided to his allies in a moment of anguish.

New concept in recreation on horizon in San Dimas

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — The City of San Dimas is launching a new concept in its recreation program that eliminates the traditional after-school program and implements specialized recreation programs for all members of the family.

The new concept was designed by Bryce Bailey, director of the Parks and Recreation Department, from what he said are accumulations of thoughts he gleaned from various recreation programs throughout the nation.

"We feel this program will be much more productive and will involve more people than the limited after-school program. This is also apparently what the people want, according to our surveys," Bailey said.

The fall, winter and spring programs will cost $32,000 for personnel, which is the basic cost of the program, and $2,500 for supplies. It will be a $400 saving in what the city spent staffing the two-hour after-school recreation program last year.

Bailey said the new program was approved by the City Council on an experimental basis for one year to compare with past programs.

Only two mothers have called Bailey to complain about the loss of the after-school program. Bailey said in both cases the women were agreeable after he explained the opportunities provided to the youngsters in the new specialized programs.

The recreation director said he feels the two-hour after-school program is lacking in many ways and for the most part just provides a place for youngsters to loaf.

He explained that there just isn't enough time to organize and implement a program in such a short period of time.

Almost every sports interest will be available in the new program, including a basic course in backpacking and a course in dry-land ski instruction. Both are part of the fee and charge program.

The backpacking program will be conducted for boys fifth through eighth grades and will cost $6. An overnight campout will be held at the end of the session. No previous experience is required.

The dry-land ski instruction is designed to help orient beginning skiers on fundamental techniques. The final two classes will be held on a dry-land ski slope in Covina. Terry Conner is the instructor. The class will cost $6 with an additional $15 for the use of the slope on the final sessions.

The program will also include excursions for adults such as trips to watch the Los Angeles Dodgers, the Los Angeles Rams, the Los Angeles Lakers and a tour of Hearst Castle.

Special holiday excursions and activities are planned for the youngsters, including a visit by Santa in his sleigh at the Civic Center on Dec. 20.

During spring vacation all five city playgrounds will be open for activities from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. featuring sports, crafts, tournaments, parties and excursions.

The city has released a 12-page booklet of programs and activities offered in the program. This is available at city hall. Registration for the first session of programs will continue at city hall weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. through Wednesday. The first classes will begin Oct. 8.

New development proposed for La Verne Heights

LA VERNE — A $30-million development, including 672 homes, an 18-hole golf course and a public park, will be built on 268 acres of virgin land in La Verne Heights starting next year.

Plans for the single-family-home subdivision, to be known as Rancho La Verne, were announced by Daniel Murray, a La Verne golf course architect who owns the land.

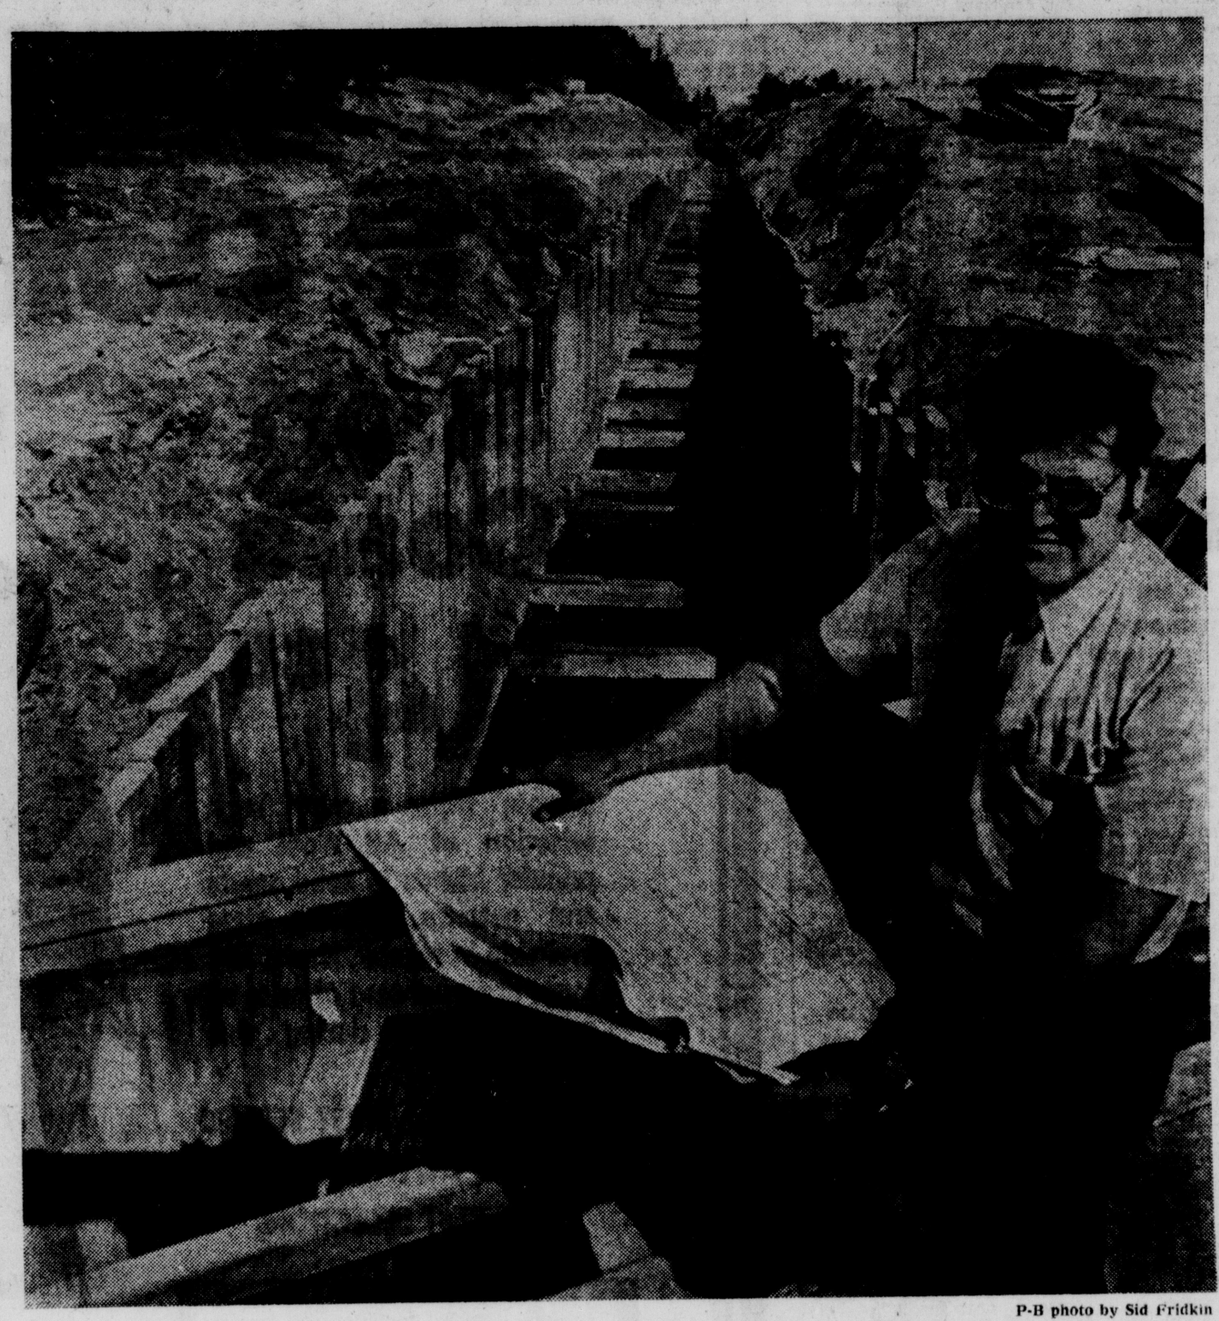

Murray says he is now preparing precise plans and designs for submission to the City of La Verne. A hearing before Zoning Administrator Charles La Gros last week showed that neighbors were not opposed to the project.

Murray says half of his land will go for open space, including a park. A 6,600-yard golf course, will include a club house, tennis courts, and a swimming pool. A bicycle riding trail also will be provided.

The first increment on the development is expected to be the golf course next spring, after which, Murray says, he will build the first 100 homes.

The houses will average $40,000 each in price. The project is located within the city limits south of Golden Hills Road and east of Wheeler Avenue.

Murray, who lives at 6725 Wheeler Ave., is the builder of the San Dimas golf course.

Home director leading United Way division

SAN DIMAS — Burton Q. Watterson, excutive director of the McKinley Home for Boys, is spearheading the agencies division of this year's United Crusade campaign in the Pomona-San Gabriel Valley Region.

Watterson's division will solicit "fair share" contributions from employes of United Way member agencies.

"Those of us who receive United Crusade funds and put them to work providing needed human care services in the community are most certainly in a position to know how important a generous fair share contribution is to this campaign," Watterson said.

Watterson recently assumed the duties of executive director of the boys' home after serving as superintendent for a number of years. He is a clinical social worker, and a member of the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce.

Foothill Boulevard median strip is planted in L.V.

LA VERNE — The median strip on Foothill Boulevard through La Verne has been planted with trees during the past few weeks as the first part of a three-section development program.

Ray Kaldenback, director of the city's parks and recreation department, reported on the plantings to the City Beautiful Committee at its September meeting. The committee had been working on the plans with the city staff for several years.

Gas tax funds have been set aside by the city to cover the cost of landscaping the Foothill median strip. It is expected to cost about $60,000 when completed. Kaldenbach stated that the maintenance of the strip after it is completed with grass turf will be handled by a private firm under contract to the city. He said that it would cost the city no more than it would to hire an extra man for his staff to do the job, and to purchase the equipment needed.

St. Monica's Guild to meet at Damien

The Rev. Martin O'Loghlen, principal, will introduce the faculty, boosters, ASB officers, class officers and presidents of campus clubs.

Councilman sounds off about city acoustics

SAN DIMAS — City Councilman D. F. Hooper made it clear this week that he is weary of the acoustical problems that have plagued the council chambers of the civic center since its dedication four years ago.

Hooper said he was tired of getting the "run around" on the problems with the sound system.

Persons in the audience often complain the voices of city councilmen aren't audible. With the present arrangement, two councilmen share one microphone.

"I fail to see why we can't get one microphone added," Hooper said. He said the City Council voted to improve the system last July as part of the budget "and now it's the middle of September and the firm promised the work would be completed by now."

The city hired Paul Veneklasen and Associates of Santa Monica to improve the present system. The firm will work as consultants to Master Electronics Systems of Los Angeles which will do the actual work on the sound system.

The work will cost $3,500 and will consist of remodeling the present system and adding a microphone on the table used by city councilmen.

Councilman James Lough said he agrees with Hooper. "This system has been a pet peeve of mine."

City Manager Robert Poff defended the work of the firm hired to remodel the system. He said the firm wasn't contacted until August and the work will take 60 days. He said the work should be completed by mid-October.

In other action this week the council voted to give a rate increase to Paul's Yellow Cab Co. The new rate will give the company an increase from 45 cents to 65 cents for the first one-sixth of a mile and also a 20-cent per two-minute traffic delay charge.

—Held over for two weeks an appeal on denial of a sign for the Circle K Market on Walnut Avenue across the street from the civic center. The sign was denied by the Planning Commission.

—Awarded the contract for street improvements for property fronting the Dunn Industrial Park at Covina Boulevard and the 210 Freeway to the low bidder, E. C. Construction Co. of El Monte. The project will cost $10,313.

Royer selected as chairman of ecology group

LA VERNE — Harold A. Royer has been named chairman of the La Verne City Beautiful Committee's ecology group.

His duties include the handling of glass turned in at the city's recycling center and the cleaning of that area. Other members include Mrs. Ann Way, Mrs. Joan Teter, Leslie Gates, Alex Mueller and Inman Conety.

Royer is taking the place of Mrs. Jean Rabenau who is going with her husband and family to Scotland where he is sent by the Burroughs Corp.

In regard to individuals who bring glass to the recycling center, Royer said the public is to be congratulated for beginning to bring glass to the center — glass without caps and metal rings. Any metal that gets into the melted glass in the recycling process spoils the new glass bottles. The "glass" division of the recyclers can do a better job of sorting for the three colors, clear, green and brown and putting out a good product, if everyone will do his part in taking off the metal caps and rings, he explained.

Ford, UAW see problems in reaching Chrysler settlement

DETROIT (UPI) —Officials of the United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. have indicted there may be difficulties in tailoring the contract ratified by Chrysler Corp. workers to fit the circumstances at the No. 2 automaker.

UAW Vice President Ken Bannon said Tuesday there were "serious problems" at Ford, the second target in this year's contract talks with the big three automakers.

"I know that they (Ford) are not shouting with glee about the Chrysler settlement," said Bannon, who opened talks at Ford Monday after official ratification of the Chrysler contract. "I haven't seen any skyrockets go up and I haven't heard any bands playing."

The Chrysler pact included a full 30-and-out retirement plan, a full dental insurance program, relief from unlimited and mandatory overtime plus a three per cent pay increase over each of the next three years.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock indicated Tuesday the union may not match the Chrysler contract word for word in its agreement at Ford.

"It is not our intention, and we have so told the Ford Motor Co., to enlarge the dimensions of the Chrysler settlement," he said. "But if there is any desire to rearrange or work differently within the general dimensions, obviously that's the business of the Ford Motor Co. and the Ford UAW."

Malcolm Denise, Ford vice president for labor relations, said in the economic area of the Chrysler agreement "there are some things that don't fit very well" at Ford.

"The Chrysler settlement is a fact of life and it is one that is going to have to be dealt with by both parties," he said. "Both parties have certain reservation about certain pieces of it that they don't think fit into our system."

While talks went on at Ford, the UAW authorized strikes at four of Chrysler's plants because of unresolved local disputes. Unless issues are resolved, these plants will be struck at 10 a.m. Monday.

Two of the plants are in Detroit and two in Indianapolis —and all are key units which turn out components essential to full production in the Chrysler system.

A final UAW count of ratification last weekend showed that 38 of 42 bargaining units for production and maintenance workers had approved the agreement, reached after a nine-day strike.

This work will be authorized by the County at intervals during the contractual period by means of several "Notices to Plant". Said notices will be issued for planting of twenty (20) or more trees. This project is estimated to cost less than $22,000.00, all in accordance with the provisions of the Plans and Specifications and Instructions to Bidders therefor which are filed in Room 383.

Proposal must be submitted on forms prepared and furnished for the purpose, which may be obtained at the Information Desk in the lobby of the Los Angeles County Road Department Administration Building, 1540 Alcazar Street, Los Angeles, California 90033 at which office bidders may also purchase copies of the Plans and Specifications for the contemplated work for the price of $7.14 plus Sales Tax per set, not refundable. Each submitted proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check, or a surety bond, payable to the County of Los Angeles in an amount equivalent to at least ten (10) percent of the total aggregate bid price of such proposal, as a guaranty that the bidder, if his proposal be accepted, will enter into and execute the awarded contract, and furnish the required bonds in connection therewith, in accordance with the terms of the aforementioned Specifications and Instructions to Bidders. In the event that a surety bond is submitted in lieu of a check, it shall be subject to the condition that the surety thereon be approved by the County Auditor and County Counsel.

Stock sale conspiracy

Fraud pair given 6-year sentences

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Two Southern California businessmen were given six-year prisons terms and $10,000 fines Tuesday after being found guilty of violations of federal securities laws in a stock fraud conspiracy involving deals with Canadian stock brokers.

Daniel E. Manning of Newport Beach, Calif., and David A. Woodridge, were found guilty by a federal court jury and sentenced by U..S District Court Judge Irving Hill.

Stephen J. Mydanick of New York City, named in the same indictment which charged Manning and Woodridge with the multiple securities violations, was acquitted by the jury. The case against Mydanick's partner, Michael E. Cannata, was dismissed by Judge Hill at the close of the government presentation.

The six-week trial arose from the activities of the Empire Oil Corp., later known as the Capitol Holding Corp., of which Wooldridge was the president and Manning the secretary.

The government charged that the firm sold about 700,000 shares of unregistered Empire Oil stock without filing the necessary statements with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The other men named in the federal indictment have not been apprehended. Robert A. Eisenberg, a former SEC lawyer, is believed to be travelling in Switzerland on an Israeli passport. Bernard Klavir and Irwin Schwartz are believed to be living in Canada. Federal officials said extradition proceedings have been filed against all three.

The government argued during the trial that Manning and Wooldridge sold some of the stock to Canadian dealers, who resold it to the general public. A Canadian witness testified that he delivered $50,000 to Manning in Los Angeles and received "large bundles" of stock in Capitol Holding. The shares were later sold over-the-market by a Canadian broker, the government said.

Waves of red tape sink 'Noah Lamechson's' modern ark

WILLITS, Calif. (UPI) — If Noah were alive today and forewarned of another great flood, could he build an ark and get the animals aboard?

The creative writing class of Willits High School decided to find out after the woeful conclusion of a local businessman, exasperated with governmental red tape, that "you couldn't even build an ark in this county."

The class approached its inquiry on a serious level, writing letters on plain stationery with only the high school's street address to governmental bodies, banks, zoos, construction firms, trucking outfits and the Coast Guard.

A decision was made to sign the applications with the name of Noah Lamechson since the Bible says that Noah was the son of Lamech.

The Old Testament also was the basic source of information for building the ark and selecting the animals.

It was necessary to translate the Biblical cubits into feet and inches. The student planners decided on an ark 300 cubits or 450 feet long, 50 cubits or 75 feet wide and 30 cubits or 45 feet high.

The Bible says Noah used "gopher wood and pitch." A Willits pastor said that gopher wood was probably cedar or cypress and that pitch was probablybitumen found in the Dead Sea area.

A decision was made to build the boat on a property known as "the old city airport" which was owned by the city. Class member Rich Wilkinson paced off the area needed and a passerby, asking what Rich was doing, was told, "measuring for an ark."

"Oh," said the man. "Well, have fun."

But the word spread quickly and was taken seriously. One townsman was overheard to comment: "Do you know what those hippies are trying to do now? Build an ark on city property."

"Lamechson" first applied for a use permit to the city engineer and was turned down, so he appealed to the planning commission.

Meantime, attempts were made to collect and transport the animals. Letters were written to several trucking agencies, all bringing a negative response including one from a company which advertised "No Job Too Big For Us."

"Lamechson" wrote the California Division of Highways about transporting giraffes from San Francisco. A reply was received warning that "some way will have to be found to keep their heads down to within 15 feet of the pavement—the lowest bridges over Highway 101 are at this height."

An inquiry to the Department of Fish and Game for permission to obtain two rare condors got this answer:

"Under state law, California Fish and Game code sections 2052 and 3511, it is illegal to take or possess certain fully protected and-or endangered wild life species. The California condor is a species found on this list. Thank you for your interest and your offer to raise endangered species for their perpetuation. Unfortunately, we do not feel that this is possible under present law."

The Coast Guard was one of the agencies that quickly tumbled. Its reply said that women crew members were perfectly acceptable so long as they were properly licensed.

"If the ship should go aground on a mountaintop, it should display as distress signals three black balls, each not less than two feet in diameter," the Coast Guard added.

Bank of America turned down an application for a $500,000 financing loan, saying neither the animals nor the boat would be sufficient collateral and suggesting something could be arranged if the ark promoters could put up "marketable securities."

Another letter went off to Little Lake Industries asking about outfitting the craft with redwood furniture and offering to advertise the company with a big sign on one side of the ark. Little Lake showed little interest.

"Lameschon" filled out an environmental impact study form including the question: "Could the project result in displacement of community residents?"

"Yes," said "Lamechson." "About 30 billion of them."

We're not going to tell you just how it came out. You may get a hint from the title of the student report, "You Can't Build An Ark In Mendocino County."

And if you want the full story, you can enclose $1 and write to the class adviser, Mrs. Ruth Rockefeller, at Willits High School, Willits, Calif.

Addict vet freed from prison term

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — If it's any consolation to Ronald W. Arnott, a former Vietnam paratrooper who became addicted to drugs in a service hospital, he won't have to spend his three-to-five year sentence in prison. He spent it in the county jail.

Arnott was arrested in 1970 and sentenced to 25 years in the state prison for possession of marijuana.

His sentence began on September 16, 1970, but he never left the Travis County jail because defense attorneys prepared a long series of appeals.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed Arnott's sentence last July and ordered a new trial. Arnott then pleaded guilty to one count of possession of marijuana and was sentenced to three to five years in prison.

He was transferred to the state penitentiary in Huntsville on Sept. 14, almost three years to the day when he was supposed to begin serving his 25-year term.

Prison officials announced Tuesday they released Arnott Monday on the grounds that the time he spent in the Travis County jail waiting out the appeals constituted his jail sentence.

"The first thing I did was look up in the sky, take a deep breath of air and say 'Thank God,'" Arnott said

A slippery answer for heavy problem

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The Fire Department came up with a slippery answer for a weighty problem Tuesday.

Radha, a rhinoceros at the Los Angeles Zoo, stuck her head through the bars of her cage and got stuck.

The firemen freed her by coating her thrroat with vaseline.

The doctor comments

Artery hardening, varicose veins differ

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Are varicose veins and hardening of the arteries the same thing? If not, could you tell me what they are.

Dear Reader — The veins are the vessels you can see directly underneath the skin, as over the back of the hand and forearm. You can also see the veins stand out in the feet and sometimes in the legs. They usually have a bluish coloration when viewed externally. The blood carried in the veins is returning from the cells and is low in oxygen. The low oxygen content contributes to the bluish coloration of the veins as you see them through the skin. When the veins in the legs become markedly dilated they are called varicose veins. This is particularly apt to occur in women and especially following pregnancy. The condition also occurs in men, but less frequently.

Hardening of the arteries is not a scientific term but is commonly used to refer to atherosclerosis, meaning fatty deposits in the walls of the arteries. These fatty deposits can later be calcified and the artery becomes hard. The arteries carry the blood away from the left side of the heart. All of this blood has been oxygenated by the lungs, and hence, it is red. It's also under higher pressure than blood in the veins. You usually can't see the arteries underneath the skin, although you may see the pumping of an artery in the temple in front of the ear, and, of course, you can feel the pulse in the wrist, which is caused by the pumping action of the heart.

Atherosclerosis, or the fatty deposits, seen in the arteries usually does not occur in the veins. There is one notable exception. If a vein is transplanted into the arterial system so it's exposed to the same pressure, it will sometimes show fatty deposits and undergo atherosclerosis. The pressure factor is important in whether a person develops atherosclerosis or not, and this is why high blood pressure is related to the development of heart attacks and strokes.

DEAR DR. LAMB — They have lists of the number of calories of different foods, but what about the calories you lose while exercising. Take for example, walking. How long and at what pace does it take to lose 100 calories?

Dear Reader — Your point illustrates that people are more inclined to concern themselves about the calories they eat than the calories they use. The truth is, both are important and the balance between the two represents the fat deposits. If you eat too many calories and use too little, you develop fat deposits. It's just like a checking account.

There are tables that give the calories for all sorts of different physical activities. Walking is perhaps one of the most common activities. A person who weighs 150 pounds and walks at a speed of three miles per hour on level ground will use about 60 calories more per mile than he would if sitting or resting quietly. An hour of walking (three miles) would use 180 calories. A smaller individual would lose less. A 100-pound individual would use about 45, additional calories a mile, while a heavier person at 200 pounds would use about 78 extra calories.

There are 3,500 calories in an ordinary pound of body fat. A 150-pound individual walking 30 minutes a day would use an additional 90 calories every day. In 365 days this would be equivalent to the calories in about nine or 10 pounds of body fat.

Rockies not ideal---if you're old

(Editors Note: This is another of a series of articles about America's elderly which will appear throughout 1973)

By TOM TIEDE

OAK CREEK, Colo. (NEA) — When Esther Lewis was younger, settling down from a brief career in vaudeville, she thought the Colorado Rockies would be an ideal place to live out her life.

Now that she's old, however, has a bum leg, has cramps in the arm and needs help she can't get, the mountains are not so lovely as they are looming. "Stuck away like this," she says, "why, I suppose I could die and not be found for days.

Mrs. Lewis is 72. She lives at the end of a barracks-like row of weathered apartments in this community of 500 people. Her husband died years ago. Most of her friends are gone. Her neighbors give little indication they know she exists. She is lonely, isolated, ignored and, most of all, vulnerable.

"Once I had to go into Denver to get a brace for my leg. There is no train so I made it down to the highway to catch the bus. It's 150 miles to Denver and with my leg and all it was very uncomfortable. Then when I got there I had to carry my own bag. I asked a policeman for help and he turned away. My cabdriver said he didn't like picking up handicapped people. Oh, it was an awful trip. But I haven't any choice, living out here."

Mrs. Lewis is not unlike hundreds of thousands of other rural elderly. Not many of them have any choice. Only one or two per cent of Americans move when they reach retirement age; thus, not able to seek out anything better, they must rely on their communities for old-age assistance. And in many instances, in rural America, there isn't any assistance.

Growing old anywhere has its problems. But growing old in rural America can be severely difficult. Oak Creek is a good example. One of four communities which make up a region known as South Routt County, it has neither the time nor money to help its aged. Once a mining center, Oak Creek almost folded (in the 1950s) when its coal industry did. It hung on, to some extent, because many of the older citizens had nowhere else to go.

Says Margaret Rossi, wife of a local rancher: "The usual things happened here. The tax base fell away. Young people started moving out. Existing services went to pot. When our one doctor retired we couldn't get a replacement. It became difficult to make it around here, for the old people especially.

As it happened, the old people made up a significant part of the population. The old-young population ratio in America is 1 to 10 (20 million to 210 million), but the ratio in rural America is often 1 to 5. In South Routt County, for a time, says Mrs. Rossi, 26 per cent of the people were over 65.

Mrs. Rossi tried to organize some relief for the elderly. She instituted a telephone reassurance system where every retired person in the area was called daily. She organized a transportation fleet to get the aged back and forth (the nearest hospital here is 40 minutes from Oak Creek).

"Actually, what I did was to try to get everybody interested in helping the old people. We didn't have any community money to begin grand schemes, but we had people. I figured if all the people got together, young and old, we could do a lot for one another."

A nice thought. Unfortunately, it was not shared by the majority. Mrs. Rossi found some numbing cases of helpless old people—"I insisted on taking one lady to the hospital and she passed blood clots right in my car, and then she just went unconscious"—but she could find little public support.

"People just couldn't care less. I don't know why that is. I guess it's just inborn in them that out here everybody has to fend for themselves. People in the mountains hate charity, you know, and any time you try to help them they think it's charity. Even the old people feel this way."

Mrs. Rossi says most old people subscribe to a stark code. They go over the hill quietly, never complaining, never requesting. "Even when I was able to help someone, they always insisted on reciprocating. They'd give me something for the favor. That's the way they are."

Fortunately for this sense of rugged individualism, as well as minimizing suffering among the old, things have begun to pick up economically in South Routt. Money being spent for the development of nearby Steamboat Springs (a skiing area) is creating arearwide jobs. Young people are once again coming in. Oak Creek has been promised a new ambulance. A full-time doctor is expected to occupy the local clinic. In addition, Margaret Rossi's pleas for mercy have sunk in a little:

"The game warden no longer throws the confiscated meat away. He gives it to me and I in turn pass it on, very discreetly, to the old folks."

Still, the elderly here, as in many other parts of rural America, are shamefully neglected. Esther Lewis for one. Even revitalized, Oak Creek continues to forget the lady's alive.

"The worst thing," she says, "is I can't leave my apartment. There's no one to take me. I use to try to get around by myself, in the summer, but now I can't even do that. There are all kinds of dogs outside my door. I'm afraid one would knock me down."

She sighs, then points to her rigidly braced leg. And though she does not say it, Esther Lewis must sometimes wonder, in this careless world: if she was knocked down would any of her otherwise occupied neighbors bother to pick her up?

bodies of two miners found

VANSANT, Va. (UPI) —Two men missing after a methane gas explosion in a mine near here were found dead early today, officials reported.

Mark Savitt of the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration in Washington, said the bodies of the two were found and recovery had begun.

The names of the men were not immediately released, but they were believed to be a maintenance foreman and possibly his assistant, officials said.

The explosion occurred shortly after noon Tuesday in the no. 4 Oakwood mine of the Red Ash Coal Co. Thirty-one men scrambled to safety after the explosion.

NEW LIBRARY USERS — Claremont library assistant Barbara Angelinski assists Dr. and Mrs. Albert J. Penner in signing their library cards at the new Claremont interin library on north Indian Hill Boulevard, north of the Griswold's Old School House complex. They were the first pair to take out new cards in the new libary. Dr. Penner is new minister of the Claremont United Church of Christ. A ribbon cutting was held Monday afternoon and librarian Mary Haaker, Mayor Craig McManigal and Gordon Curtis joined in cutting the ribbon. Griswold's converted the old Claremont high school into a library facility. The county signed a three-year lease for the building while a new one is being built.

New involvement still vigilantism

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A drunken gunnman shot and killed one man and wounded two others recently on 134th Street in Manhattan. Then, according to police reports, angry neighbors of the victims chased the killer, subdued him, "beat his goddamn head in," and turned him over to authorities.

The incident was viewed by police, press and many desperate New Yorkers as another in a recent series of similar events that may indicate a new citizen determination to help the police do something about crime in the streets.

According to the trend theory, people are fed up with being pushed around by thugs. No longer will they merely stand by in fear and docility while their neighbors are being victimized. Manhattan police report that shortly after the incident on 134th Street, 30 taxi drivers chased the suspects of an armed robbery and held them, too, for arrest.

What's more, the hope is that the phenomenon is spreading to the rest of the nation. Several urban papers have recently commented on "citizen actions" in their own cities. In a suburb of Newark, for example, three little girls spotted a supermarket breakin, phoned the cops, gave a description of the getaway car, and, quick as one could yell "Stop-you-dirty-thief," the bandit was hauled to the clink.

To be sure it is no wonder people grab onto such occurrences as "trends." Many Americans have long been ashamed of the "Kitty Genovese" image of citizen non-involvement. Miss Genovese was the attractive young woman who, in 1964, was pursued and stabbed to death by a lone killer while 38 of her neighbors in Key Gardens, N.Y., looked on sheepishly. More recently, a woman in Trenton, N.J., was beaten and raped while a dozen people stood 100 feet away without so much as speaking disapproval.

But the "new involvement," as it has already been faddishly termed, does have its critics. Police, while happy that people may be coming out of their cocoons, have cautioned citizen activists not to take the law into their own hands.

"Stopping a criminal is one thing," says a P.D. spokesman, "but kicking his teeth in is another. Police cannot act as judge and juries, so neither should regular citizens."

The American Civil Liberties Union, too, has voiced a bit of alarm. Barbara Shock of the New York chapter says that, technically, any citizen who beats up another, whether as a means of law deterrence or not, is liable to legal consequences:

"While it's commendable when citizens help in criminal apprehension, it becomes a problem when force is used. The situation could get out of hand and we could have mobs arresting and beating other people because they look different or they have different life styles. Clearly, we can't have untrained citizens roaming our cities as vigilantes."

So it goes in New York and elsewhere — another issue, another controversy. But in this case all the hopes and all the arguments may be for naught. The "new involvement?" A closer look suggests this is one trend that just ain't.

The incident on 134th Street, for example, was not at all as the reports assumed. None of it occurred, say the people on the block, in the name of community spirit.

Community spirit? On 134th Street? According to one resident of the area, Luis Fieria, "The only time people get together here is to go to the welfare office to get their check."

On thirty fourth, off Amsterdam Avenue, is in the heart of the Spanish Harlem ghetto. "Three kinds of people live here," says a cop, "bad people, pretty bad people and scared people."

The block is a crowded canyon among decrepit and often dangerous tenement apartments. Dog urine stains the stoops, drug pushers operate openly, women can be bought for $5 an hour. The trash collectors fear to tred, there is no cop on the beat and it is not far from the truth to say that strangers — especially whites — are not welcome after dark.

Jose Espinosa, an antipoverty worker, says that the neighborhood consists of Puerto Ricans who don't like Dominicans, who don't like Cubans and blacks who don't like anybody. "Very few people speak English. Many of them are in the country illegally. Welfare is a way of life. It is hard to get anyone to understand, much less cooperate."

In this atmosphere, then, the police version of the recent street killing is suspect. Indeed, residents say it didn't happen like the official version at all. Says Luis Figeria: "There was this guy who hated this family. He said a month ago he was going to kill them. So when the family had a party, this guy showed up and started shooting. He killed one boy and wounded two brothers. The brothers then fought back. Other people at the party joined in."

There was no spontaneous reaction in the neighborhood, Figeria says. "It was a family thing. Families stick together."

Disappointing? Of course. The American spirit is such today that it desperately needs something stimulating, something to be proud of, like a "new involvement." But it can't be found by hoping, not on 134th Street anyway, where community spirit is buried under neglected community need.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Ice cream shop owners sue over fatal jet crash

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The owners of Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour have filed suit for $500,000, contending an F86 Sabrejet that crashed into the restaurant one year ago was negligently operated, constructed and maintained.

Named in the suit Monday were the late William Penn Patrick, owner of the craft, executors of Patrick's estate, and Richard Bingham, pilot of the plane.

Twenty-two persons were killed in the Sept. 24 crash adjacent to Executive Airport where the plane failed to properly take off.

Survivors of the crash have filed additional lawsuits seeking $31.5 million in damages, but final settlements are at least a year away. Part of the delay was caused by the death of Patrick, a multimillionaire killed this summer when another of his old fighter planes, a P51, slammed into the ground near his Lake County ranch.

The United States is crisscrossed by 800,000 miles of natural gas pipelines, some dating from the 19th century.

Italian baseball venture described

Athletic Director Bill Arce of Claremont-Mudd returned home recently after spending the summer coaching the Italian National baseball team.

As all too frequently happens with a coach, the minute Arce landed in Bologna he was confronted with a crisis.

"The immediate problem," he said, "was location of replacements for eight to 10 key players who were unable to participate." Actually only the catcher and third baseman from the previous tournament team were available along with one relief pitcher from the previous pitching staff.

Within 24 hours of his arrival, Arce was deep into work on the European Baseball Championship, not preparing his players but trying to get a team together!

"To add to the dilemma," he continued, "three very promising young pitchers were involved in student examinations and could not participate."

Arce had to get his team together and had only two days to practice before beginning a seven-game barnstorming series with Harvard University.

Arce's suddenly assembled crew lost all seven games to Harvard. Arce said improved hitting and defense were quite evident and only one game was a laugher.

The European Baseball Tournament was held at Haarlem, Holland. Arce's Italian team and the Holland nine easily defeated the other opposition: France, Sweden, Belgium, and Spain.

The two unbeaten teams met before an overflow crowd of 10,000 in the double-round robbin event.

Holland takes lead

Holland jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first three innings. But Arce's young team erupted for seven straight hits in the fourth to go ahead 6-4. Holland came back with single runs in the fifth, seventh, and eighth to take a 7-6 lead into the ninth inning.

A two-out double, a walk, and a wild pitch put runners on second and third. But, after a near wild pitch which would have tied the game, Arce's hitter struck out.

"The strikeout was accompanied by a roar from the crowd which you well may have heard in Claremont," said Arce. "I don't know if the Dutch pitcher survivied the pounding he took from his teammates. But I do know baseball games between Italy and Holland can match any of our own for baseball excitement."

The Dutch took the second game and the tournament 6-2 and it was back to instructing and scouting before reassembling the National team in Rome to prepare for the International Cup Tournament. The difference this time was that Arce's players for the European Baseball Championship had been pre-picked for him while he himself put together the team he coached in the Cup Tourmament.

Participating teams, in addition to Italy, were from Japan, Nationalist China, Nicaragua, Argentina, Puerto Rico, Canada, and the United States.

Japan turned out to be the eventual winner, but no team went unbeaten. Arce's team pulled off the biggest upset in defeating the previously unbeaten U.S. team, 6-5, in 10 innings.

The U.S. team scored single runs in the first, second, and fourth innings to take a 3-0 lead. Arce's Italian team tied it in the bottom of the fourth and took a 5-3 lead in the fifth.

Ford's son homers

But the U.S. team was not finished by any means. Eddie Ford (son of former Yankee great Whitey Ford homered with a man on in the seventh to tie the game 5-5.

The score remained the same until the last of the 10th, when, as Arce put it; "8500 Italians went bananas when one of the Italian players hit a game-winning home run to give Arce's team a 6-5 victory.

Altogether Arce's squad posted a 3-4 record in the tourney but was definitely in every ball game in the four losses.

For instance, Nicaragua (which placed second in the World Tournament last November) won in 10 innings on a home run with two on and two out.

Against Puerto Rico, the game was tied 3-3 going into the last half of the eighth inning. Again with two on and two out the home run beat the Italians.

Playing Japan, the Italians led 2-0 and 3-2 in the first five innings. Japan tied it 3-3 in the sixth and went ahead 7-3 with a four-run seventh. Italy fought back to narrow it to 7-5 and only a good play by Japan ended the inning with the bases loaded. But Arce's next young pitcher was hit hard and Japan eventually won 11-6.

The Italians lost to Canada 7-6 playing what Arce called, "the only poor defensive team in the entire tourney. His left fielder lost two balls in the twilight with two outs and men on base and cost his team five of the seven Canadian runs.

Arce's team notched wins over Nationalist China (7-5) and Argentina (7-2) in addition to the upset victory over the U.S.

Wilt finds happiness in S.D.?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —Wilt Chamberlain, one of the dominant forces in pro basketball since his entry into the NBA 15 years ago, entered perhaps the most controversial phase of his career Wednesday wien he jumped to the San Diego Conquistadors of the rival ABA.

Signed for three years as a player-coach, Chamberlain brushed aside possible legal repercussions from the Los Angeles Lakers. He said he would play 10 years more if his mind and body permitted and hoped to model his career after University of South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire.

"I won't 'handle' the players," he said. "I believe you handle horses and animals and work with men. I admire the way McGuire is able to work with men."

Lakers General Manager Pete Newell said he hopes Chamberlain has every success as a coach, but Los Angeles will take "all necessary steps" to keep him from playing for San Diego.

"The Lakers legal position is quite clear," he said. "Chamberlain has a binding contract with the Lakers for the 1973-74 season and the Lakers will take all necessary steps to prevent him from playing with any other club than the Lakers."

Chamberlain said he phoned Lakers' owner Jack Kent Cooke in New York Tuesday night to tell him he would not be returning to Los Angeles.

He said no repercussions were discussed.

"He probably thought I was after a better contract," Chamberlain said.

Chamberlain's attorney, Cy Goldberg, said he could not comment until legal action had been taken.

"We're here to play," he said. "In any case they could not prevent Wilt from coaching."

Goldberg admitted the only California case of this type, involving San Francisco's Rick Barry, was settled against the player.

"But there have been many cases elsewhere since," he said, "and the trend has been away from bondage. California has a reputation for setting the way."

Chamberlain succeeds K.C. Jones, who went to the Capital Bullets. Stan Albeck has been acting coach for San Diego and will remain with the club in some capacity, according to owner Leonard Bloom.

Chamberlain said he will join the Q's in seven or eight days, after he finishes some personal commitments. Although he exercises daily, he admitted he is not in "basketball condition."

He declined to discuss the amount involved in the deal but said $300,000 a year was "way too low." He indicated his acquiring a percentage of ownership in the club has been discussed and he plans to do all he can to make the Conquistadors a great operation.

Chamberlain has been charged in the past with causing coaches to be fired, missing practice and criticizing fellow players.

He said his run-ins with coaches should "help me avoid pitfalls."

As for criticism of teammates, such as in his new book he has been promoting, Chamberlain said he talked with some of his teammates Tuesday and they all were hoping he would be back.

"Jerry West conveyed to me personally that he did not hold out because of my book," Chamberlain said. "My move should help Jerry make more money and he deserves what he's asking. He's a pro and the best guard in basketball. If the Lakers don't come through, I may call him to come down here."

How much Chamberlain plays will depend on the team's other centers, veteran Gene Moore and 7-foot rookie David Brent. He said he has a center in mind who he would like the Q's to acquire.

Bloom, a former cheerleader, who appears to be about half Chamberlain's size, said he had been discussing the move with Chamberlain for about two years and the settlement came after an arm wrestling match between the two, which Bloom lost.

"I've worn No. 13 most of my career," Chamberlain added, "and to get it back I guess I'll arm wrestle whoever wears it for the Cues now."

Stew Johnson, the team's leading scorer last year, currently wears the number.

Chamberlain holds virtually every scoring and rebounding mark in the NBA, but one problem has been shooting fouls. He has never fouled out but he also is one of the poorest free throw shooters.

Asked about the new ABA rule which awards extra free throws instead of fouling out a player, Chamberlain said he was not familiar with the rule but he would not change his defensive style of play.

"But I could use the extra free throws," he added.

Winkles says he is taking new approach

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — Angel fans, players, and the umpires will see a stronger, more forceful Bobby Winkles next season.

That was a promise made by Winkles at the press conference Wednesday evening in which it was announced that he had been re-hired for another year by General Manager Harry Dalton.

Winkles was able to celebrate the night after Bob Oliver's two-out single in the ninth inning defeated the Texas Rangers, 5-4. Nolan Ryan will face the Minnesota Twins tonight, needing 15 strikeouts to break Sandy Koufax's season mark of 382.

"I'm not going to distinguish between veterans and rookies next year when mistakes are made," Winkles said. "Maybe I had a misconception this year of the way to handle veterans and rookies. Next year tails will be chewed whether it's a veteran or rookie."

Winkles also issued a warning that he felt he had been very easy on the umpires this year and intended to be much more aggressive next year when he thinks a mistake has been made.

Asked how long he thought it would be before the Angels are a definite contender for the pennant, he replied, "If I had to make a guess I'd say two years although we'll be a much better club next year."

Winkles left the discussion of trades up to Dalton to strengthen the club's attack and added that the Halos' defense was not good enough either and that it" has to be better next year.

The former Arizona State coach cited Nolan Ryan and Bill Singer as the "guys on the pitching staff that he got good performances from."

When it was his turn, Dalton minced no words in stating the three things he hoped to accomplish in the post-season trading marts.

They are "(1) a catcher who can catch 135 to 140 games a year and hit: (2) bullpen (relief pitching) help: and (3) another every day player (as opposed to a pitcher) who can knock in runs."

Asked if he would trade (A) Nolan Ryan and (B) Frank Robinson, Dalton replied, "I don't think this club can get along without Nolan Ryan. I think Frank Robinson will be back next year."

Dalton said that Tony Conigliaro would play in the instructional league and if the former slugger looked good enough, he would be brought to spring training next season.

Dalton also revealed that, although he had not talked with the coaching staff, all of Winkles' aids would be offered new contracts if they wish to return. A fifth coach will be added to the staff, but what particular duties he will have has not yet been determined.

Ratings don't impress Eaton

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Mal Eaton, third-year head coach at Mt. San Antonio College, doesn't give a hoot for football polls.

As far as he's concerned, they don't mean a thing, unless you're No. 1 or 2, or whatever, after the season is over and you've proved it.

So, like a week ago when he poohpoohed MSAC's No. 5 rating on the first weekly community college grid poll, he's taking lightly the Mounties' No. 2 ranking this week.

This despite the fact that the Mounties have been about as impressive as any team can be in its first two games. First, it was a 34-0 victory over Citrus in the opener, and last week it was 34-10 over No. 8 ranked and highly regarded Golden West.

The Mounties also hold a "victory" over No. 1 ranked El Camino, one of two teams they scrimmaged before the regular season began Sept. 15.

The Mounties played El Camino to a draw in a controlled encounter at Memorial Stadium. Tom MacKenzie's 26-yard field goal near the end provided the margin of "victory".

That one doesn't count of course, but it might be a conversation piece later in the season.

The Mounties may not get another crack at El Camino, but they'll be in the general vicinity Friday night when they visit Wilmington for a 7:30 game with L.A. Harbor College. The Mounties beat the Seahawks a year ago, 27-26, on a 43-yard field goal by MacKenzie in the last two minutes.

The sophomore, who doubles as a defensive back, hasn't forgotten how to do it. Counting the effort in the scrimmage with El Camino, he has booted five field goals in five chances, and has added eight points-after-touchdown in eight tries.

Harbor, winless in two starts thus far, is not a team to be taken lightly. While the Hawks have scored only seven points themselves, they have yielded only 17. The losses were 3-0 to L.A. Pierce and 14-7 to Orange Coast.

"It's a typical hard-nosed Harbor team," said Eaton. "They don't do anything fancy, they just come after you."

The Mounties have been hard-nosed too, giving up just 10 points in two games. But they'll be without middle guard Chuck Shrewsberry Friday, and the rest of the season. A letterman, and a fixture in the middle of the defensive line, Shrewsberry fractured an elbow against Golden West. His replacement will be Rick Gohl (6-2, 230), a veteran from a year ago.

Offensively, the Mounties appear healthy. Quarterback Steve Myer and tailback Teddy Farmer compliment each other with the run and the pass. Myer, although off his 1972 pace, has completed 21 of 40 for nearly 200 yards and four touchdowns. Farmer has gained 211 yards on 42 carries for a 5.3 average.

So, for the Mounties there is little to find fault with. But the coach is quick to add a fact of life:

"When you're winning, you don't necessarily look for negatives," he points out. "You have to be grateful for the fact that you've won. It has taken a lot of hard work to win, and it will take a lot to continue winning."

Aaron admitting chances are slim

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron admits he probably would have already called it quits for this baseball season if he weren't close to Babe Ruth's home run record and adds his chances of catching Ruth before next spring, "appear very slim."

"If I weren't chasing a record, I probably wouldn't even be playing these last few games," a weary Aaron said Wednesday night after failing to homer in the Braves 9-8 loss to Los Angeles.

"I'm a bit down at the moment," Aaron added. "I'm not so concerned about not hitting a homer but I felt we should have won the ball game. We spent nine innings piddling around in the rain."

Aaron, two shy of Ruth's 714 career record with only three games left to play this season, was 1-for-4, a single, with two runs batted in Wednesday night. He hit a run-scoring fly deep to left in the first imning, singled in a run in the second, lined out sharply to left in the third, then had two pop-ups and a walk.

"If I don't hit one tomorrow (tonight), then you guys can go home," Aaron told newsmen who crowded around his locker after the game.

The 39-year-old Aaron, who has 39 homers this season and 712 in all, confessed he missed a golden opportunity in the seventh inning, just after Mike Lum and Darrell Evans hit back-to-back homers off young fastballer Eddie Solomon.

Tonight Los Angeles is expected to pitch Claude Osteen (16-11), a left-hander off whom Aaron has hit 13 home runs, more than any other active pitcher.

"The last couple of years, I haven't fared well against him," said Aaron. "He's been tough on me. I figure he'll throw me some strikes but he'll probably be careful."

Although career homer No. 713 won't be the record, it would set a team record for the Braves. Dave Johnson has 43 home runs this season, Evans' Wednesday night shot was his 40th and when Aaron hits one more, Atlanta will become the first team ever to have three men hit 40 or more in the same season.

The Dodgers scored three runs in the ninth inning Wednesday night to beat the Braves and upset Aaron, who got another time at bat he neither expected nor wanted.

"I thought we had it won, but that's the sort of team the Dodgers have been against us all year," said Aaron. "I don't enjoy playing when the Braves are having this sort of season. About the only thing that has kept my enthusiasm up has been chasing that Ruth record."

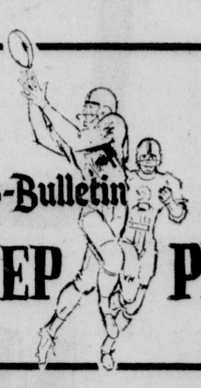

Practice begins for Classics

ONTARIO — Practice sessions for this weekend's Third Annual Champion Spark Plug Motorcycle Classics at Ontario Motor Speedway will begin Friday morning at 9 a.m. and continue through 5 p.m., with a one-hour lunch break.

The practice will be open for the Expert, Junior and Novice divisions, all three alternating turns on the track.

Qualifying races for the three divisions will start at 10 a.m. Saturday morning and will continue through 12:30 p.m.

Then Saturday at 2 p.m. a 76-mile Novice race will be held, with a 125-mile Expert-Junior Combined Lightweight race following at 3:30 p.m.

Chino vs. Azusa at Citrus College, 8 p.m.

Last year, this is where coach Jim Rawls Chino Cowboys flexed their muscles and came away with their first win of the year, 27-6.

Both teams will be coming into the game with an 0-1 preleague record, Chino losing to South Hills, 21-6, and Azusa falling to Ganesha, 25-7, last weekend.

Jerry Belmudes will direct the Cowboys tonight at quarterback, with Don Cossey, Mike Nieman and Rick Reidel filling up the backfield. But this weekend the Cowboys are going to need a little more help from their offensive line.

Damien at West Covina, 8 p.m.

It looks like coach Ron Smedley and the Damien Spartans are going to have to wait one more week before picking up their first win of the young 1973 football season.

The Spartans (0-1) were unable to get untracked offensively against San Dimas last weekend in the traditional rivalry. And this week they go up against a tough West Covina team (1-0) which competes in the rugged Sierra League.

It's the battle of the Spartans, with Dean Sickles and Larry Pekarcik scheduled to call the signals for Damien.

West Covina blanked Rosemead, 26-0, last weekend.

Diablos face Poly in 'Anderson Bowl'

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

Only two games have been completed in the 1973 grid campaign but Cal Poly has already been assured a spot in one of the bowl games.

Saturday night at Kellogg Field, the Broncos take on Cal State Los Angeles in the 'Anderson Bowl' classic which begins at 7:30 p.m.

The game figures to be high scoring and very exciting because it features two highly explosive offenses.

Few teams are ever selected to participate in bowl contests and since the teams are CPP and CSLA there won't be many dull moments especially with the bowl at stake.

Not only are the teams matched but so are the coaches. Poly is directed by Roy Anderson while CSLA is guided by Foster Andersen.

It will be the sixth meeting for the two coaches and the 10th for the schools. Foster owns a 3-2 edge over Roy while CSLA has a slim 5-4 series advantage.

The Diablos' Anderson has been on the victorious side the past three meetings. So, that makes one more reason for Poly to be more determined, not to mention the 63-28 drubbing CP suffered in 1968, Roy's first season at the reins of the Broncos.

CSLA is off to a disappointing start. The Diablos have dropped decisions of 42-7 to the University of Nevada at Las Vegas and 31-14 to Cal State Fullerton. Poly has been surprising to say the least.

The Broncos began '73 by knocking off Fresno State 17-9 and followed that up by being stunned by Southern Utah 35-18, in what looked like a ballet without contact.

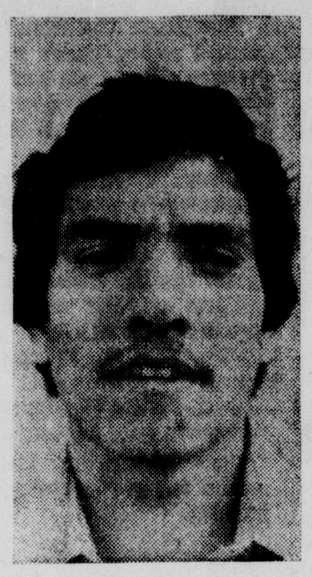

Then just for the sake of inconsistency Poly regained its ballet form in a 30-minute showing that saw the Hornets rush for 242 yards. Fortunately, 60-minutes make up a football game.

The Broncos came back in the last two acts to earn curtain calls and a 31-17 win over Sacramento State.

Quarterback Jim Zorn continues to show progress. His last engagement earned him 290 yards, 259 of those coming on 13 completions good for four TD's.

In three games, the 6-0, 200-pounder from Cerritos College has rolled 650 yards total offense.

Flanker Joe Fabian earned College Division Player of the Week for his performance. Fabian snatched eight Zorn-bullets for 199 yards and three TD's. He has now snagged 12 tosses for 298 yards.

The defense which held the Hornets to 140 yards in the second half was led by lineman Gary Bockman and Bill Embree. Bockman suffered a knee injury and is a doubtful starter for the Diablo game.

The Broncos will have their hands full Saturday. CSLA is a very physical as well as very quick team. Their personnel are rated as good or better than any of the teams [illegible].

Quarterback Rick Holoubek is the leader of the Diablo offense. The 5-10 170-pound junior guided Pasadena City College to the Metropolitan Conference title and State runner-up honors in '72.

Holcubek was third in the state in total offense and earned the Metro Most Valuable Player award for completing 108 of 217 passes for 2,010 yards and 18 TD's.

"Their offensive team is as good as any we've played," said Poly mentor Roy Anderson. "If you thought Sacramento's QB was quick and talented wait until you see Holoubek. He is even quicker. He has very fast feet and is a pinpoint passer from either the run or the drop back. CSLA is like Sacramento offensively except with a passing attack. But their defense is questionable.

"We have to hope to play evenly with them offensively and be sure we're sound so we can take advantage of as well as force mistakes."

Along with Holoubek, the Diablo backfield is blessed with the talents of running backs Larry Watkins and Buford Ransom.

Watkins led CSLA rushers last year with 501 yards on 149 carries and seven TD's. He also hauled down 10 passes for 90 yards.

In last week's loss to Fullerton, Holoubek passed for 138 yards, completing 12 of 22 tosses and rushed for an additional 56 yards on 15 carries.

Bruins take final drills before MSU

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The UCLA Bruins worked out for two hours in 90-degree heat wearing sweat suits Wednesday, their last long practice of the week before Saturday's game against Michigan State at East Lansing.

Coach Pepper Rodgers said the team reviewed all offensive and defensive plays and went through a "good workout."

Rodgers also announced several changes in the offensive and defensive starting lineups.

— At offensive tight end, freshman Raymond Burks from Gardena High replaces senior Eugene Jones.

—Sophomore Randy Cross, 6-foot-3, 240 pounds, will start at offensive center in place of junior Art Kuehn, who played the first two games.

— Either junior Greg Norsleet or sophomore Rick McCray will play defensive middle guard in place of Mike Martinez, who suffered an ankle injury in the Iowa game.

Citrus College football coach John Strycula has apparently found the answer, but Chaffey's Willie Richardson is still looking.

That's the way the two community college football coaches look at the third week of the season which culminates Saturday in Mission Conference games for both teams.

Strycula's Owls made a successful climb from an opening week loss to MSAC, 34-0, with a 20-7 victory over Palomar.

"We still have to improve," said Strycula," if we are to be serious contenders. Even though we won, we looked a little shabby."

Not looking shabby at all, however, was freshman tailback Doug Hopper, who rushed for 188 yards on 24 carries.

Defending co-champion Citrus faces defending co-champion Saddleback in a 7:30 p.m. game at Ctirus Stadium Saturday.

Saddleback handed Chaffey its second losss in a row, 35-21, last week and the Panthers were again the victims of too many turnovers—six in all—in a game they were in all the way.

"Our problem seems to be that we can't handle adversity," Richardson said. "We'll be in it until something adverse happens and then we fall apart."

The Panthers host rugged San Bernardino, a team which has lost two games by a total of five points—30-27 to Grossmont last week, and 16-14 to Phoenix two weeks ago.

Stags greet Whittier in SCIAC opener

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — John Zinda's Claremont-Mudd team kicks off a big weekend of football for Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference schools Saturday.

The Stags (0-1) host defending conference champion Whittier (2-0) at 1:30 p.m. In night games, Pomona-Pitzer (0-0-1) takes on Azusa Pacific (1-1) at Alumni Field at 7:30 p.m. while La Verne (0-1) clashes with USIU (1-0) at 7:30 p.m. at Bonita High in non-conference tilts.

Rounding out the conference, unbeaten Redlands (2-0) hosts Loyola (1-0) and Occidental (0-1) travels to San Diego to meet USD (1-1) in non-conference games.

Zinda's Stags may be without halfback Billy Nash in their encounter with the Poets. "San Diego is a very physical ball club,' Zinda commented and we have four or five players that, at this stage, are doubtful for Saturday. Nash has a badly bruised leg."

"I was encouraged," he continued," that we seem to get together in the second half after they had built up a 35-0 lead in the first half and held them scoreless while we did get seven points on the board."

Zinda described his defense as "inconsistent" in the USD game and that penalties and turnovers (7) hurt the offense.

"We watched Whittier against La Verne and they look like the same kind of club as always," he remarked. "They can score and they have good defense."

Coach Walt Ambord of Pomona-Pitzer will have to come up with a new starting offensive tackle for the game with APC. Incumbent David Jones suffered a knee injury in the opener with Whitman and is lost for the season.

"Alan Martini (220 pound senior) will replace Jones (195 pounds)" said Ambord, "and we may give Axel Borg a chance to start in Martini's place on defense."

Borg is a 6-2, 255 pound sophomore who was Ambord's champion heavyweight on the wrestling team as a freshman last year.

APC's Jerry Sconce said his Cougars are still making an awful lot of errors. "We improved about 15 per cent," he remarked. On offense, Jim Farmer carried the ball 13 times and gained 110 yards, Quarterback John Tully completed 10 of 13 passes for 101 yards and had two or three-completions nullified.

"But Pomona is bigger and quicker this year, Sconce said. "Ambord has some fine talent and it is going to explode some day."

Roland Ortmayer will have to warn his La Verne offense about Lem Burnham of USIU. The 6-5, 240 pound defensive end earned national NAIA Lineman of the Week honors for his performance in the Westerner's 9-6 win over Southern Utah. Burnham was involved in 20 tackles including three quarterback sacks, was credited with two pass deflections, and caused a fumble.

Not surprisingly, the USIU Press book lists Burnham's nickname as "Madman."

Dolphins 2-0 after beating Raiders, 13-7

The Pomona Dolphins own a perfect 2-0 record after the first two weeks of Pop Warner competition in the Midget Division.

Last Sunday at Garey High, the Dolphins defeated the Montclair Raiders, 13-7, on touchdowns by Steve Smith and Pat Munford plus Roosevelt Lett's extra point. The Dolphins visit Santa Ana this weekend in a non-league game.

Meanwhile, the Pomona Bruins (Pee Wee) won their 14th consecutive game in blanking the Upland Chargers, 20-0.

The Claremont Warriors (Midget) evened their record at 1-1 be defeating the Chino Colts, 9-6. Greg Ruecker scored the touchdown in the first quarter on a three-yard run with quarterback Bill Magnusson running for the extra point. Jay Conaway tackled the Chino QB in the end zone for a safety in the fourth period.

Takashi Brown and Bob Verburg rushed for more than 120 yards on the ground for the Warriors while Steve Campbell intercepted a Chino pass. The Warriors travel to San Bernardino Sunday for a 2 p.m. game against the Patriots.

Meanwhile, the Fontana Elks beat the Claremont Bucs (Pee Wee), 13-0. Ross McConnell and Greg Toler were outstanding for the Bucs on defense. The Bucs draw a bye this week.

In Chino, the Mavericks (Jr. Pee Wee) won their second in a row by beating the Pomona Chargers, 18-6, thanks to three interceptions.

The Dusters (Pee Wee) were held to a 13-13 tie by the Diamond Bar Gauchos. Brian Tavegia and Blake Cash scored the Duster touchdowns as the Dusters have an 1-0-1 record.

In games this Sunday, the Mavericks play the Upland T-Birds at 11 a.m. in Upland, the Dusters visit the Fontana Wolves at 2 p.m. and the Colts meet the Ontario 49ers at 3 p.m. at Garey High in Pomona.

Upland's Pop Warner teams compiled a 2-3-1 record for the week with the Mustangs (Midget) creating the most noise with a 50-0 whipping of La Habra in a game called by mutual agreement at halftime. The Mustangs rolled up 266 yards total offense while allowing only 30.

The otherwinner was the Upland T-Birds (Jr. Pee Wee) in a 6-0 blanking of the Fontana Falcons thanks to a second quarter touchdown by Scott Spalding on a 16-yard pass from Ted Butler. The T-Bird defense allowed the Falcons only 21 yards.

Two Upland Bandit touchdowns were nullified by penalties so the new Tiny Tot team had to settle for an 0-0 tie with the San Dimas-La Verne Tartans. Wendell Crossland, Jeff Morgan and Phillip Valadez were outstanding for the Bandits.

The Rams (Jr. Pee Wee) fell to the Claremont Raiders, 19-2, with Upland's score being on a safety on a tackle by Todd Allen. Dave Edsill and Rich Pomierski recovered Pomona fumbles in the Chargers' loss to the Pomona Bruins. The Redskins (Pee Wee) were blanked by the Diamond Bar Chiefs, 7-0.

Lopez rated 2-1 favorite

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Unbeaten featherweight contender Danny "Little Red" Lopez is rated a 2-1 favorite tonight to extend his string to 21 victories in a scheduled 10-round bout against Mexico City's Goyo Vargas.

Coming off a knockout win over Young Harada in Honolulu six weeks ago, Lopez is seeking a fight against the winner of the Oct. 11 world featherweight title bout between champion Eder Jofre and Vicente Saldivar in Brazil.

He is listed as No. 3 in the featherweight division with 20 knockouts, after advancing from the bantamweight division.

Known as a slugger, Vargas has a 23-6 record with 16 knockouts.

Moose pitches Pirates back into N.L. chase

By United Press International

Eleven months ago Bob Moose had the misfortune to literally pitch the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the 1972 National League pennant race.

Today the 25-year old righthander has the satisfaction of delivering "five good innings" in the Pirates' hour of need and helping them move back into the 1973 race.

Moose, who wild-pitched home the run which gave the Cincinnati Reds their "sudden death" ninth-inning 4-3 victory over the Pirates in the final game of the 1972 NL championship series, came through Wednesday night as the Pirates whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 13-2.

That victory, coupled with the Montreal Expos' 8-5 triumph over the New York Mets, lifted the Pirates to within a half game of first place in the NL's Eastern Division race. The Pirates can tie the Mets for the lead by beating the Phillies tonight while the Mets are idle. Both teams would then have four games left to play.

"This is the first 'laugher' we've had," said Danny Murtaugh, referring to the period since he took over as manager on Sept. 6. "Moose gave me five good innings but I took him out because he started Monday."

Moose took over for rookie Jim McKee, making his first major league start, in the third inning and allowed one run in five innings. The pirates promptly rallied for seven runs in the bottom of the third and, with Moose holding the fort, piled up a 13-2 lead before Bob Johnson came on to pitch the last two innings.

Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 9-8 as Hank Aaron went homerless, St. Louis beat Chicago 1-0, San Diego downed Cincinnati 5-1 and Houston topped San Francisco 5-0 in other NL games.

Rich Hebner drove in four runs and Gene Clines and Dal Maxvill batted in three each to lead the Pirates' 13-hit attack. Clines singled twice and drove in three runs during the Pirates' seven-run rally, Hebner hit a two-run homer and Maxvill had a three-run triple in the game. Moose's five strong innings earned him the victory and squared his record at 12-12.

The Expos kayoed Tom Seaver with five runs in two innings, were tied at 5-5, and then won the game on Bob Bailey's two-run homer off Harry Parker in the seventh. It was a brutal loss for Seaver, the highly-publicized Met ace who saw his chances of a fourth 20-victory season become almost non-existent.

Hoople formula favors Ganesha

By MAJ. AMOS B. HOOPLE
Wizard of Odds

Egad friends, another weekend of valley football is upon us. And what a lineup we have!

In the Gig Game department we find the Ganesha Giants of that fine lad, coach Garry Norvell, traveling all the way to Oxnard to prove their worth before a sellout crowd at Oxnard Stadium Friday night. After all, what else is there to do on a Friday night in Oxnard?

The Giants will prevail, claiming victory No.2, in a 30-20 thriller.

In other biggies, it will be West Covina 28, Damien 13, and Azusa 14, Chino 7, in weekend openers tonight.

On Friday's slate the Hoople Formula has worked out the following amazing predictions:

Pomona will bounce back from last week's 7-6 loss to Pacific with a stunning 25-13 victory over Fontana. Other games will find Glendora handing Claremont its second loss in a row, 21-12. Ontario will prevail over Montclair, 21-6; Alta Loma will continue to roll, 23-14 over Upland;

It's Walnut 28, Rowland 14; San Dimas 19, Nogales 13; Royal Oak 21, Monte Vista 0; Temple Ctiy 34, Bontia 19; Webb 22 ,Ontario Christian 6; and Chaffey 24, Mater Dei 20.

Valley colleges will be in action too. Mt. San Antonio plays a Friday game at L.A. Harbor College, and the Mounties will claim their third in a row, 17-7, over the rugged Seahawks.

On Saturday's slate it's Chaffey over San Bernardino, 19-14, in a major upset of the winless. Citrus will continue its climb after the opening humiliation to MSAC, 34-0, with a 20-14 victory over Saddleback.

Four-year colleges will win a few and lose few.

The Cal Poly Broncos, on their way to a fine season, will handle the Cal State L.A. Diablos, 27-17, while La Verne will pull one of its famous upsets, 21-13, over U.S. International University.

Azusa Pacific looks like a sure thing, with a 31-12 victory over the Pomona-Pitzer Sagehens, but cross-campus rival Claremont-Mudd won't fare as well, dropping a 21-13 encounter to Whittier.

Across the nation it looks like this:

The mighty Trojans of Southern California host the high-scoring Oklahoma Sooners in the week's top Battle of the Ratings. The Hoople computers have a read out of: Troy 28, Oklahoma 16. Egad, it's a stunner.

Elsewhere in the ratings battle, the awesome Buckeyes of Ohio State will challenge for the top spot by rolling over TCU, 42-20, Alabama will chastise Vanderbilt, 40-20, and Nebraska will turn back a good Wisconsin club, 28-14.

In a big Southeastern Conference clash, Tennessee takes on Auburn at Knoxville. We confidently predict an Auburn triumph over the Volunteers by a narrow 22-20 count.

In other meetings worthy of special note, Penn State will edge Iowa, 27-21, Notre Dame will best old rival Purdue, 28-13, Texas will prevail over Texas Tech, 25-14, Illinois will squeeze by West Virginia, 17-10, and LSU will cook Rice, 28-7 — har-rumph!

Now go on with the forecast.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

LOS ANGELES MAYOR Tom Bradley said Wednesday he wants to investigate the question further before commenting on whether the city of Los Angeles would be interested in hosting the 1975 Pan-Am Games.

THE MONTREAL EXPOS, on the verge of falling out of the see-saw National League East pennant race, Wednesday extended by one year the contract of manager Gene Mauch through the 1975 season.

THE POST SEASON Basketball Tournament organized to compete with Madison Square Garden's National Invitational Tournament in New York will be held next March in either St. Louis or Nashville, it was announced Wednesday.

THE PARENTS of a 14-year-old boy who died four days after being hit on the head by a foul ball at a 1970 baseball game lost their $1 million damage suit against the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday.

A superior court judge dismissed the case after a jury found the team and a doctor at a stadium first aid station innocent of any negligent action.

DIC SELMA was sold by the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday to Salt Lake City, a farm club of the California Angels in the Pacific Coast League.

TOP-SEEDED Stan Smith battled for his life Wednesday night before ousting Onny Parun of New Zealand to vault into the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Firemen's Fund International Tennis Tournament.

BEGINNER'S LUCK — Former Pomonan Jeanne Feague Henry poses with 104-pound blue marlin caught Sept. 15 at Ft. Lauderdale.

Waterfowl hunting is delayed

SACRAMENTO — Seven state and federal waterfowl areas will have deferred openings this year because of late crop harvests, the Department of Fish and Game announced today.

Farmers are fearful that shooting on the areas would drive waterfowl onto the still unharvested rice, the DFG said.

Areas affected by the delayed opening are the state's Gray Lodge Wildlife Area, and the Sacramento, Delevan, Colusa and Sutter national wildlife refuges, all opening Oct. 27. The Merced refuge is scheduled to open Oct. 31, and the Joice area, heretofore managed as a unit of the Grizzly Island WMA, will open Nov. 3.

The other 10 state and federal areas on which hunting is managed by the department will open on the opening dates of the waterfowl seasons for their respective season zones.

Scheduled to open Oct. 13 are the state's Honey Lake and Imperial wildlife areas and the federal Salton Sea refuge. One week later, on Oct. 20, the state's Grizzly Island Volta and Los Banos and Mendota wildlife areas and the Kesterson, San Luis and Kern national wildlife refuges will open.

Hunters were reminded to note delayed openings particularly before submitting applications for reservations and to watch newspapers and listen to the broadcast media for announcements of further delays if they should be necessary.

The DFG also announced that applications for reservations to hunt the areas during the first half of the season are being shipped to license agents and should be available to sportsmen late this week.

Biggest fish caught by valley girl

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Former Pomanan Jeanne Feague Henry has caught the biggest fish to date in the Blue Marlin tournament in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Mrs. Henry, who had never been deep sea fishing before, landed a 104 pound blue marlin Sept. 15. The fish measured 97 inches in length.

The marlin tournament, part of the annual Ft. Lauderdale fishing festival, runs through Sept. 30. So although Mrs. Henry's catch is the biggest to date, she is not yet assured of taking first prize.

A graduate of Bonita High School in 1965, Mrs. Henry entered MSAC and earned a degree in Associated Arts when she graduated in 1967.

She has been a stewardess for Eastern Airlines for five years and is currently based in Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Henry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hunter of Pomona. Mr. Hunter has been a member of the Pomona Fire Dept. for 14 years. Mrs. Hunter has been employed by Western Union for 28 years.

10 hurlers get 20 wins in A.L. play

By United Press International

In the year of the designated-hitter, it is the pitchers who are setting records in the American League.

Three more entered the 20-game winning circle last night and tonight Nolan Ryan goes after Sandy Koufax' season strikeout record.

Only four times in major league history have 10 pitchers won 20 games in the same league in one year. With four days remaining in the season, the number of AL pitchers to turn the trick may go as high as 13 or 14.

Bert Blyleven's one-hitter helped Minnesota beat Oakland 4-1 last night and gave the right-hander his 20th victory against 16 losses. He beat 21-game winner Jim Hunter, who suffered his fifth defeat.

Paul Splittorff became the first Kansas City Royals pitcher ever to win 20 games when, with the help of reliever Doug Bird and John Mayberry's 26th homer, he dropped Chicago 6-2.

And Jim Colborn became the Milwaukee Brewers' first 20-game winner with a three-hitter that beat New York 5-2.

Ryan needs 15 strikeouts in his last scheduled start tonight to eclipse Koufax' major league mark of 382 strikeouts in a season.

In other AL games, Baltimore shut out Detroit 4-0, California edged Texas 5-4 and Cleveland nipped Boston 1-0.

The Orioles, who won their sixth straight with the help of Paul Blair's two RBIs, need victories in their remaining four games to finish with another 100-win season—a feat they've accomplished three of the last four seasons.

John Ellis' 14th homer gave Gaylord Perry the only run he needed to even his record at 19-19. Perry will go after his 20th win Sunday.

Diamond Bar teams open home slate

DIAMOND BAR — The Diamond Bar Jr. All-American football teams will open their home schedules with four games at Walnut High School beginning at 9 a.m.

In the first game, the Silver Cowboys (Jr. Pee Wee) will host the Baldwin Park Roadrunners. At 11 a.m., the Blue Cowboys (Jr. Pee Wee) greet the Bassett Leprechauns. The Pee Wee Cowboys will entertain the Glendora Tartans at 1 p.m. with the Midget Cowboys closing the day by playing the La Habra Heights Bucks at 3 p.m.

The Silver Cowboys blanked Avocado Heights, 7-0, in their opener on Steve Simich's touchdown and extra point. Jay Kleiwer blocked a punt and recovered a fumble to lead the Cowboy defense. Jim Manchip and Mark Winans intercepted passes.

However, the Blue Cowboys took a 13-6 defeat at Avocado Heights. Jeff Shook scored the lone touchdown for the Cowboys on an one-yard quarterback sneak. Jeff Boyd blocked a punt while Wayne Forsyth, Bobby Gannon and Mike Osenbaugh were credited with their defensive play.

Cheetahs win 12-13 trophy

MONTCLAIR — The Southern California Cheetahs took the first place team trophy in the 12-13 age division on the two-mile course at the La Mirada Invitational cross country meet.

Jill Lineberger placed fifth to lead the Cheetahs with a time of 11:37. Other point winners were: Sixth LaDonna Phillips; eighth Reegis Waters; ninth Hedy Hafen; and 12th Sheri Webster.

The Cheetahs also took second place honors in the women's division as Becky Wolfinbarger placed second with a time of 18:13 on the three-mile course.

Angie Gregoire placed fifth to help the 9-under division team take third place honors while Diane Esslinger was second in the 10-11 division.

The Cheetahs will compete at Orange on Oct. 6.

Bagley 'virtually certain' he'll seek controller office

By ROBERT E. SWEET

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — William T. Bagley, a veteran assemblyman whose forte is mediating disputes between Gov. Ronald Reagan and Democratic legislators, said today it is "virtually certain" he will run for state controller next year.

Unless the political climate changes dramatically,the San Rafael Republican said, he will formally announce his candidacy in January to succeed his longtime friend Houston I. Flournoy as California's "fountainhead of fiscal facts."

Flournoy is seeking the GOP nomination for governor.

"I've never felt it's right to spend your whole life in the legislature," said Bagley, a 13-year veteran of the Assembly. "It's an avocation and not supposed to be a means of earning a livelihood, although many of my colleagues unfortunately try to make it such."

First he set his sights on a promised post in the Nixon administration. "But my plans got washed out by Watergate," he said.

The Republican lawmaker explained that the furor over the Watergate scandal had brought Washington to a "standstill" when he was considering a federal post last spring. "You could get a job there if all you wanted was a job—but you couldn't get anything done," he said.

With Washington out of the picture, he then began thinking about being controller.

No prominent Republicans had expressed an interest in the office, and Bagley had already amassed $50,000 for campaigning which he saved from previous Assembly contests.

Now, he said in an interview, "I am virtually certain, in fact totally certain I will announce my candidacy in January, assuming the political situation remains the same."

And the affable lawmaker already has lots of ideas on how to make the controller "an independent fountainhead of fiscal knowledge."

Perhaps the biggest change he envisions is to make the office "nonpartisan," a new status which he said would be the controller's "emblem of independence."

Despite his widely regarded expertise on taxes, Bagley has declined to take a position on Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax initiative that will appear on the Nov. 6 ballot.

"I don't plan to be a table-pounding advocate one way or the other," Bagley said, adding that he will take no position on the initiative until he knows more facts about the proposal.

Although as controller he would be a member of the state Lands Commission, which acts on offshore oil drilling permits, Bagley said it was "too early" for him to take a public stance on oil exploration.

This week he is mailing Republican leaders around the state copies of a letter of praise from Reagan, who credits Bagley with "wise counsel" in controversies over the 1971 welfare "reform" act and the 1972 property tax relief measure.

"I am certain that the monumental education finance and property tax relief measure would never have come to fruition had it not been for your untiring efforts," Reagan wrote. "You managed almost single-handedly to effect the necessary compromise without sacrificing substance."

Citing this ability to mediate disputes between Reagan and Democrats, Bagley said he hopes to continqe his role as 'middleman" in legislative disputes if he becomes controller and offer "independent fiscal analyses" of problems which arise.

"It is a case of the man fitting the office and the office fitting the man," he said.

"The major function of the controller is to be a fiscal watchdog for the taxpayers," he added. "If you're going to hire a watchdog, you ought to hire one who knows what he is watching."

Kennedy says postal rate hike bid high

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has asked the Cost of Living Council to take a close look at postal rate increases requested by Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen.

Kennedy wrote the council's director, John T. Dunlop, saying "the proposed increases in postal rates are exhorbitant and inflationary on their face."

The Post Office filed formal applications Tuesday to raise the price of a first class stamp Jan. 5 from 8 cents to a dime, airmail from 11 cents to 13, and other classes of mail by from 6 to 40 per cent.

Klassen told a news conference that the Post Office needed the money not only to cope with "severe inflationary pressure" but to make good on past promises of improved service.

He said most of the money would go to covering an estimated $1.9 billion 1974 deficit, research and purchase of machines and real estate. The aim, he said, is to guarantee overnight airmail delivery between the 500 largest U.S. cities.

The request for higher rates was filed with the independent Postal Rate Commission, a five-man advisory body appointed by the President.

AT&T claims rate hikes necessary

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The nation's largest telephone company, American Telephone & Telegraph, must keep pressing for higher rate increases to keep pace with the economy, an AT&T executive said Tuesday.

Higher phone charges must be sought, despite previous rate hikes that have halped AT&T to show record profits of $800 million for the last three months, according to John J. Scanlon, the firm's executive vice president and chief financial officer.

"Regulatory authorities are increasingly recognizing the need for higher earnings," Scanlon told a meeting of the Los Angeles Society of Financial Analysts.

He admitted that recent government-approved rate hikes—about $380 million worth this year—played a key role in AT&T's strong earnings showing, but he said that wasn't enough.

Regulatory officials must be shown that "higher revenues are needed to attract the capital AT&T requires to provide adequate service," Scanlon said. r

He said the giant New York based utility is waging a constant fight to meet increased competition and to "reprice servicesi n line with today's costs."

Last week, AT&T reported profits of $800 million for the three months ended Aug. 31, up from $750 million in the same period a year ago.

Japanese by the thousands invade France to see, buy

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS (NEA) — France, which has known many invasions, is braced again.

The Japanese are coming, close to half a million are expected this year. And not all are tourists. Business tycoons, pockets bulging with yen, are discovering not only the charm of France and Western Europe but also the business possibilities.

So far as hotelkeepers are concerned, the Japanese are the best guests in the world. They are quiet, forever smiling, never find fault, pay without questioning and leave their rooms in perfect order.

Discreetly, speedily, Japanese businessmen are interested in buying anything and everything. And when they don't buy they copy.

Multimillionaires have their agents here often operating mysteriously. They have invaded the sacrosanct precincts of horse racing, for example. There are already a half-score training stables around Paris, housing over 100 horses, in Japanese hands. And last year, a Japanese textile magnate bought Hard to Beat, winner of the Jockey Club race, for many millions of francs.

Out at the Flea Market, it is not unusual for a Japanese to sweep up the contents of a booth. Good, bad, indifferent, but always different from their national product. Said Gerard Albouy, one-time modiste to the social elite, who three years ago put up his shingle in the Flea Market and now specializes in roccoco and Art Nouveau pieces: "Last year some Japanese bought literally thousands of dollars worth of vases, objects of art, lamps, chandeliers. They seldom haggle, pay cash and attend to all the shipping details."

Leaders of the Paris ready-to-wear industry complain bitterly: "In Tokyo or Osaka we see our models copied and worn by thousands of great granddaughters of Madame Butterfly."

As a matter of fact the Japanese have quietly been infiltrating the market. Kenzo, a young Japanese stylist who opened a shop in an out-of-way arcade in Paris a couple of years ago, is now considered one of the leaders in the younger group of the ready-to-wear field. There are already three Japanese "boutiques" operating and more to come.

The Japanese are "regulars" at the large public auction salesrooms in Paris and Versailles, as well as in the smaller places in the suburbs, buying up paintings, furniture, statues, carpets. Every Frenchman in business is rubbing his hands and prices are soaring, but not yet enough to disturb the equanimity of the Japanese buyer.

The celebrated and also the more obscure vineyards in the Bordeaux and Burgundy regions have reported the invasion on Japanese buyers who are acquiring not only the bottled vintages but the vineyards themselves.

It looks as if every Japanese tycoon dreams of starting his own cellar of prestigious wines and hanging a Renoir or a Van Dongen in the board room of their office headquarters. It is rumored that this year will see the opening of at least three art galleries in Paris, owned by Japanese.

According to the owner of a well-known gallery in the Avenue Matignon, Japanese buyers are not like any others. They usually come in groups of three or four, spend long hours negotiating, then leave only to return the next day and start all over again. They usually end up by buying after the third session.

The Japanese have made another discovery in Paris outside of the Impressionists, and that is prints. This was long considered a minor popular art in Japan. Today they are buying back all the Japanese prints they can lay hands on with the result that the price has quadrupled, according to Mme. Janette Ostier who is reported to have the best collection in Paris.

"The Japanese probably think: if the Europeans go for this form of art, it must be good," she says.

Drawings by Foujita, a Japanese who made Paris his home in the pre-war era are also fetching high prices.

It appears that Japanese who are investing capital in France all want offices on the Avnue de l'Opera. Why? Nobody knows. Perhaps becasue there already are five or six Japanese restaurants there and more to come. They plan to open two ready-to-wear specialty shops there, while a well-known Tokyo optician will soon hang up his shingle.

Japan Air Lines are said soon to start construction on a 700-room hotel in the Left Bank of the Seine. Near Chatres, there is a Japanese-owned felt factory and a zip-fastener one in Lille in Northern France.

All these plans naturally are welcome to the 20,000 Japanese residents of Paris. They already are contemplating a large-scale party come spring to celebrate "Paris on Tokyo Time."

Youngster, 11, having his problems

By JEAN ADAMS

MOVING: (Q.) I like Judy very much. I have liked her for two years. We are both 11. My family is moving and I want to keep in contact with her. I'm afraid if I send her a letter and she sends one back my parents will find out. They know I like her but not how much. — Judy's Friend in Florida

(A.) Ask Judy if it will be all right to write her and if she will answer your letters. If she says yes, talk to your parents about your plans.

Tell them that Jean Adams says boys and girls should be free to write each other and that their parents should not read their letters unless invited to.

If your parents agree to your exchanging letters with Judy, never put anything in any of your letters that you would not want ANYONE else to see.

ALONE: (Q.) I am 13, going into the ninth grade, and I live in a "small rural area" (commonly called a village.) There are two other girls my age here, NO boys. We ride a bus to a small town school about 10 miles away.

My problem is loneliness. Both my parents work until late, my older sister is in college, I can't join any school clubs because my parents can't take me and they don't like to bother other people.

I'm not very buddy-buddy with the other two girls. And because my parents are never home I can't invite friends. What else can I do? — Unhappy in Virginia

(A.) The threat of loneliness is not restricted to rural areas. Many boys and girls who live in cities and towns write me about being lonely.

Your parents are obligated to help you lessen your loneliness. You should schedule activities—including them when possible —to keep you active in mind and body.

In your prticular situation, gardening would be an ideal answer. Flowers or vegetables or both. This would keep you beneficially busy a large part of the year. A pet or pets to take care of would be another answer.

Also consider music, work or study in connection with your village church, practice at home on cooking and other aspects of housekeeping.

With your parents you can go on brief trips to nearby towns or cities for theater or other events.

And get to be more buddy-buddy with the two girls near you. The only friends we can win are the people we know, and noe one is perfect. Friendship is the best cure of all for loneliness.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter but she regrets that she cannot answer each letter personally.

'Mystery disease' in only knock knees

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: A man at a recent party told me confidentially that my Weimaraner, Willie, had genu velgum. Willie is enough of a worry without some mysterious disease but nobody can telll me what he has got. What has he got? — S.G

Dear S.G: Worrisome Willie is knock-kneed.

DEAR DR. MILLER. We have what I think might be a wooly bear caterpillar. I'd like to keep it alive as a pet and see what it turns into. I'm feeding it plant leaves right now. Is there anything else I have to do with it? — R.D.

Dear R.D.: Obviously you should provide some type of protective cubtody. Keep its quarters clean daily as long as it is eating. The food should be whatever it prefers in the way of green leaves fresh daily. Assuming all else is well, the caterpillar doesn't stop eating until it is ready to spin its cocoon when it will choose its own cozy corner and start spinning. When this project is completed, clean out the container and set it aside in some cool protected area through the winter. Bring it in come spring and wait for the emergence of the adult tiger moth or whatever.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Did I read in your column that cats don't get heart disease? This is more than an idle question because my cat is being treated right now for a heart condition and the doctor assures me there is no question but what that is the problem. — LO.

Dear LO. While I have indicated that heart diseases are less common in cats than dogss they can and do occur. And because heart disease is less frequently encountered in the feline, it would be more likely to be overlooked especially if it were not in an acute or critical stage. One problem in treating the cat who does have this problem is the hypersensitivity of the feline to some of the drugs used, particularly in the digitalis group. Even so, digitalis is often used with cats showing signs of heart failure. One advantage the feline heart patient has over the canine is that the feline in such a serious condition usually will have the good sense to remain quiet and obtain its much-needed rest. Many canine cardiac patients succumb long before they otherwise would simply because they won't slow down.

Six indicted for income tax evasion

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —A federal grand jury indicted six persons, including the president of a Miami-based airline and the general manager of Pocono Downs, Inc., Monday on charges of evading $4.3 million in income taxes.

U.S. Attorney Robert E.J. Curran said the indictments stemmed from an 18-month probe by the local office of the U.S. strike force on Organized Crime and Racketeering.

Charged were Edward F. Dixon, 51, formerly of Mt. Carmel, Pa., and president of Chalk's Air Lines, Miami, Fla.; his brother, John P. Dixon, 48, Frackville, former president of the Dixon Contracting Co., Inc., Wilkes-Barre, and their cousin, John L. Dixon, 60, Mt. Carmel, former executive director of Development Association of Pennsylvania.

Curran said the three were charged with evading personal and corporate income taxes. John L. Dixon also was charged with filing false tax returns for Tri-County Engineering Associates, Inc.

The other indictments named James J. Durkin, Dallas, Pa., head of Durkin Enterprises; James J. Durkin Jr., 35, also of Dallas, general manager of the Shamrock Racing Association, and Edward E. Durkin, 32, Mountaintop, Pa., general manager of Pocono Downs, Inc.

Edward F. Dixon was charged on six counts of tax evasion and filing false returns for 1967 through 1971. He also was accused of tax evasion and filing false returns for Dixon Contracting for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1969.

John P. Dixon was charged with tax evasion for 1969 and 1971 and tax evasion and filing false returns for Dixon Contracting in 1970 and 1971 when he headed the firm.

John L. Dixon was charged in 10 counts of the indictment, including allegedly filing false returns for himself from 1968 through 1971.

McCall views Agnew attacks as 'vicious'

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) —Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, who frequently clashes with fellow Republican Spiro T. Agnew on the issues, recently criticized what he called vicious efforts to discredit the vice president.

"A lot of the governors would be very sympathetic to Agnew if allegations result from the fact that somebody brought him a basket of groceries or that somebody knocked off the cost of his hotel room, and it's things like that that really get into tremendously picayunish, vicious efforts to bring him down," he said.

McCall was host at the Western Governors Conference here. His comments came in answer to a question.

He said the "more frightening" part of Agnew's case and others is the role of informers who are given immunity in exchange for "telling the wildest stories about the biggest figures you can think of."

"I think this is spawning a new kind of justice of the most vicious nature," he added.

Harold S. Geneen, 63

IT&T chairman works 80-hour week

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's said that he's an executive who thinks only of work. Yet he likes to strum a banjo, listen to jazz music and try to break 104 at golf.

He earned $813,311 last year running International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation's 250 companies in 90 countries but probably spent little of it. Not enough time. He works an 80-hour week.

He is Harold S. Geneen, 63, chairman and chief executive of ITT, ninth largest industrial company in the country with $8.6 billion in sales, the third largest industrial employer with a work force of 428,000.

Because he insists on personal monitoring of the ITT empire, from Brussels to Bangkok, Geneen seldom gives interviews. And he practically never speaks about Geneen, the man. He considers that a waste of time and uninteresting to most people.

In December, 1972, UPI started trying to change Geneen's mind. He finally consented to a lengthy session in his 12th floor Park Avenue office. At it, Geneen talked and waxed philosophical about many things, including himself.

He talked, among other things, about the country's waning position in world markets, corporate responsibility in social areas, "screwballs," boating and fishing and what he'd like to do when he retires.

Q—Do you feel America is being seriously challenged for the business leadership of the world? What can we do to maintain our leadership?

A—There is no question that America is being seriously challenged. In some respects we are losing ground. If one talks about the "beachheads" established in various parts of the world by multinational companies, American business and capital set the pace. The multinational which establishes itself as a responsible corporate citizen and becomes part of host countries is welcome and accepted on that basis. Business feels strongly that this is the only way we can compete in these markets. Obviously it would be much simpler to export from the U.S. American "management" methods and abilities are still unchallenged, but American "costs" are definitely under challenge.

We Americans have become accustomed to affluence and world leadership. So today we are "coasting". This fact is being challenged worldwide on the basis of costs and performance. It should be realized that technical ability is no longer a monopoly of the U.S. except in a few special fields and for the most part can be matched or even bettered at much lower costs in parts of the world such as the Far East and Europe. I believe that the U.S. must work hard to recover, and the first step is to get business, government, labor, and the consumer to recognize what is necessary.

Q—Many polls today show a sharp drop in public confidence in big business. Why should that be, Could business be failing to tell its story?

A—First, something I saw in a poll the other day. In it, other areas fared worse than business. What really came through was that public confidence in almost everything is very low today. You may ask: what does that mean? Does it mean that the public has no confidence in anything, or that most people don't understand and many don't care?

The business job, as I see it, is to see that the people who put up the capital get a good return. We have to think about our needs, our costs, our competitors' costs and what the competition involves. Then you put this money to work by coming up with plans, hiring workers and coming up with the product or service that is attractive. If any part of that cycle gets thrown out of balance it doesn't work. Recently I saw a poll in which two-thirds of the workers interviewed said that increased productivity helped only the shareholders. That opinion ignores the fact that workers have a much better standard of living with more leisure time, more vacation time, fewer work hours and higher pay. And it all comes from the system under attack.

Basically, people like to hear what they want to hear. But maybe we should speak up more. Maybe we should do this even if it's unpopular. Business hasn't told its story well enough.

Recently, a college teacher wrote about the need for business to tell its story on the campus. As a result, we are sending one of our managers to that professor's campus. Too long we have been spending money. Now, I suppose, we should start using corporate people to tell the business story.

Q—How many hours would you say you work daily?

A—Well, I probably put in 10 or 12 hours per day, five days a week. On weekends I probably put in eight hours. So I probably average 60 or more hours per week. (Ed: Associates say he works about 80 hours per week.)

Q—You already have mentioned some of your hobbies. I heard somewhere that you're a music buff. Is it true you play the banjo?

A—Well, I used to play but I haven't had time lately. I wasn't too good at it. I really play for my own amusement.

Q—Don't you have quite a collection of jazz records?

A—Not really a collection. I do like old-fashioned jazz. I often tape good records and play them back when I'm travelling.

Q—You have to keep healthy if for no other reason than the responsibility you have to so many people. Do you have any special program for staying fit?

A—I do a lot of outdoor things. Boating, fishing, golf. When I was selling ads on the World Telegram I used to spend most of my time on the move. That was in the depression era and my territory consisted of all of New England, New Jersey, Long Island and New York. When the weekend came around all I wanted to do was sit down and read, do something quiet because I would be talking all the time during my work week. Now all I do is sit around and talk, write things on pieces of paper and stuff like that. When the weekend comes around I want to get outdoors. If I get the chance I run around a bit after getting up in the morning. Not as much as I'd like but I often can't because of time.

Q—What qualities do you admire in people—social as well as professional.

A—I don't know. Maybe just the quality of being regular people. That may be an odd comment but it rules out screwballs. I shouldn't use that word because it may be I just mean people I can't understand. Basically, I like competent people who get things done, who can correct their mistakes if they make any. Their batting averages should be good and they should be willing to put in a good day's work.

Q—You travel a lot. Is there one country you enjoy most?

A—I was born in England and happen to like it because I can speak the language. I also like its roast beef.

Q—What do you feel is your greatest accomplishment to date? And your biggest challenge of the future?

A—I feel that our greatest accomplishment to date has been to help build a large sound multinational company which is a constructive force in host countries throughout the world and in the U.S.

I would like to think that perhaps the major contribution resulting from this effort has been the management method we have developed. It is being used around the world in our companies and we understand it is being imitated and adopted by other companies both here and abroad. Our system permits what is really a group of small companies to operate independently. We have, we believe, pushed the decision-making process though all levels.

Q—What do you consider your biggest mistake; what would you do over again if you had the chance?

A—I don't know if one can figure out his biggest mistake. You must adopt a management approach and may make fundamental mistakes. If you knew the answer in advance— well, you couldn't. As I look backwards, I realize we worked very hard in our acquisition days to move our earnings, then 80 per cent overseas and heavily in Latin America, into better balance. And we did. We now get 55 per cent from the U.S. and 45 per cent from overseas. Had we foreseen how the dollar would behave we might have gone slower on our shift to domestic operations.

Q—What constitutes happiness and fulfillment for you?

A—If I had the answer to that question, I could probably sell it by the box. I enjoy accomplishing things, whatever they are.

Q—One day you'll be leaving ITT. How then will you spend your time?

A—A tough question. I'd like to get away from working 60, 70 hours a week. There probably would be some carryover value to the company, something I could contribute. Basically, I suppose, I'd like to find other areas of work. I have one quality, be it weakness or strength, and it sometimes gives me problems. I get very enthusiastic about almost anything. I get very involved and keep after it. Maybe I may spend time in the social problems area. I'll say one thing definitely. I have absolutely no enthusiasm about entering politics. If I wanted to do something effectively the last place I would go would be politics.

Poll shows Nixon dip in popularity

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) —President Nixon's popularity slipped by 3 points during the last three weeks, according to the latest Gallup poll. Gallup reported Sunday 55 per cent of the American public disapprove of his performance in office.

The poll said the President received favorable rating by 35 per cent of those questioned in its latest performance surevy, with 10 per cent expressing no opinion.

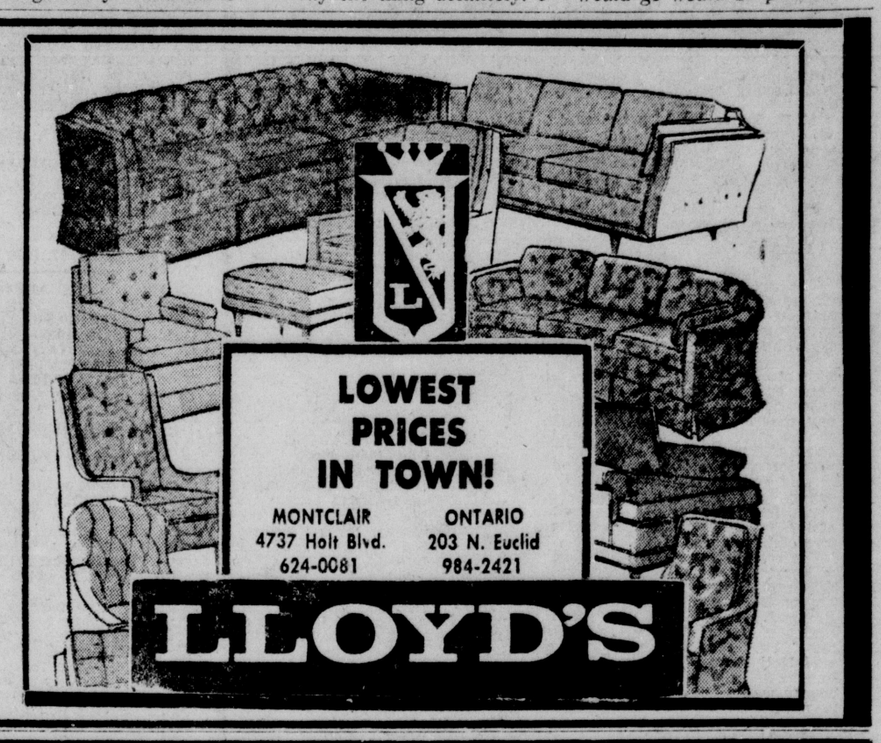

According to Gallup, 72 per cent of the American people now believe that Nixon himself either planned the Watergate bugging, knew about the plan in advance, or tried to cover up the scandal.

The pollsters said that the slight difference in the percentages since the questions were put to the public three weeks ago indicates the President's attempts to gain the people's confidence with televised news conferences has apparently failed.

The poll also reported that 61 per cent of the people believe Nixon should turn the tapes of conversations he had with his aides on Watergate over to the courts.
